Good for Pessimists
Ashamed of Killing
What Is Morality?
"Please Tie Me Up"

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1920.)

All chances to be grateful are welcome. In this country we do not see Woodrow Wilson in the mountains with Hiram Johnson or some other competitor "tightening a military net around him."

In some ways we are better off than Mexico, let us be grateful for that.

Cotton Mather assured the Puritans that their happiness in heaven would be much increased by looking down and watching the writhings and horrible sufferings of the damned. We have changed and do not feel that the smell of burning flesh would add much to the delights of heaven as we are now constituted. But a short, sympathetic look into Mexico may help a pessimist.

Mrs. Cantine asked permission to see her son die in the electric chair. The refusal of the authorities is encouraging. The government power that kills, thus indorsing killing, is not exactly proud of its work, apparently. That means progress.

Red Indians, capturing a mother and son, would compel the mother to look on while the son was tortured. They were proud of their work. The history of Lasalle tells of parents compelled to witness torture of their children, and of a young warrior eaten by his tormenters after enduring torture with wonderful fortitude. We have made progress, but we still do kill by hanging and by electricity in the name of justice.

Murderers and lynchers have therefore highest authority for belief that, under certain circumstances, killing is the right thing.

What constitutes "moral character?" You know the Turkish lady working in the rose fields, who modestly covers her face with a thin skirt. Her only garment when the hated giaour passes. You know the Orinoco lady mentioned by Herbert Spencer, who hesitates not at all to go out of her hut stark naked, but would feel ashamed to go out without being painted.

Now you read of Marie Baco and her child and Mr. Karl Heidemann, father of the child, who has the child and won't let Marie Baco take it.

The story is complicated, but short. Karl Heidemann told his wife all about it and she forgave him. He has the baby. The mother wants the child, and screamed, then fainted, when told she couldn't have it.

The learned judge says the most important thing for a child is moral atmosphere. The child, a few months old, goes to the father. According to a court decision we discover that the interesting morality that surrounds a man who has confessed to his wife and been forgiven, is not shared by the poor woman, mother of the child, who was willing to take the burden upon herself.

It was arranged, however, for the mother to see the child occasionally. That should help. Perhaps the forgiven husband could arrange to take in the mother as cook and make everybody happy, including the baby, which might prefer its own mother to moral atmosphere or a forgiven father.

The American Woolen Company "earned about 100 per cent. last year."

One branch of Standard Oil announces that last year it earned fifteen million dollars more than the year before. It has earned in profits two hundred millions in the last seven years. To celebrate the good news that company increases the price of gasoline.

Such items of financial news make it quite clear that no profit will be enough, as long as the public tolerates taking more. Sooner or later the public must regulate the power to tax without representation.

Certain men feeling an insane fit coming on go to the police station and say: "Please lock me up." They wish to be protected against themselves.

Some profiteers not satisfied with two hundred millions profit in seven years on one small company, are still not satisfied with

Postal Clerk Shoots Down Policeman in Robbery; Slain in Pistol Battle

Chicago, May 14.—Quitting the monotonous routine of a postoffice employe's existence, Horace Walton, postal clerk, today ended hsi brief career as a train robber with the bullet of a policeman in his brain.

About an hour previous he had robbed the mail coach of the Illinois Central Railroad's "New Orleans Limited" of $80,000 in gold and currency and had killed a policeman who hailed him while he was escaping.

The robbery and its subsequent developments constituted one of the most spectacular episodes in the history of Chicago.

It is believed by the police that Walton, after leaving his postoffice job, organized a band and planned train robberies all over the United States.

A woman, described as "a beautiful blonde," and two male associates of Walton are hunted.

Boarding the train at Gilman, Walton went forward to the mail coach, bound the five clerks at the point of a revolver and escaped as the train pulled into a suburban station.

Half an hour later he fought a revolver battle with two policemen who stopped him in the street as a suspicious character, killing one and, escaping to his apartment nearby.

Traced there and surrounded by fifty policemen, he threatened to "take plenty of coppers along to Hell with him," and then fought a revolver battle with them for more than an hour.

With his last two shots he resisted arrest by firing at Chief of Detective Mooney as the latter, after breaking down the door, plunged in and fired a bullet into his head. Walton died in a hospital.

THREE ARRESTED FOR ATTACKS ON GIRLS

James Dowdall, twenty-three years old, of O street; Steven Hilliard, aged twenty-four, of East Second street, and Alphonso Sears, fifty-five, of East Sixth street, all in South Boston, were arrested today for assaults upon young girls. VOTERS TO PASS ON COUNCIL

Measure Making Changes in City Legislative Body Wins in House

The new Boston City Council bill, abolishing the present board of nine members elected at large and establishing a board of fifteen members elected every two years by districts, today passed the final stage in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

A motion to defeat the bill by striking out the enactment clause was made by Representative Benjamin C. Lane, Republican, of Boston, and was defeated on a rising vote of 99 to 1.

The bill has already passed all except the enactment stage in the Senate, a process which is generally regarded as a foregone conclusion, and is expected to reach the Governor's desk early next week.

Opponents of the measure, who include Mayor Peters, the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the Good Government Association, anticipating that the Legislative fight is over, are now pinning their hopes for a veto, which they will urge upon Governor Coolidge.

Even assuming that the bill receives the Governor's signature, it will not become operative until accepted by the people, as it contains a referendum clause giving the voters the opportunity to accept or reject it at the next State election, which takes place next November.

The measure provides that at the city election next December the new board shall be elected for one year and thereafter, every two years.

Don't Buy Sugar; You Don't Need It, Says Expert

Take heart, you sugar eaters! Join the Don't Worry Club! Sugar is as unnecessary to the body as a fifth wheel would be to an automobile.

Professor A. G. Woodward, associate professor of the chemistry of food department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says that eating sugar is only a habit. If the human race consumed less it would be far better off, he says.

"The appetite for sugar is an unnatural one," he said today. "It is an evil of modern civilization. We use it because we inherit a taste for it. It is not necessary as a food, despite its 100 per cent. food value. We don't use it for its food value, but because of its palatability.

"Stop using sugar, substitute nature's food, and the price of sugar will drop to its rightful level. Eat more vegetables, especially carrots and beets. Eat plenty of fruit, raisins, prunes and apricots and you will grow healthier, and more prosperous. Sugar would be a drug on the market, if we could only realize its uselessness."

GOOD FOR HEAT ONLY.

"When we put sugar on oatmeal we commit a dietetic sin. Sugar is a carbohydrate. Its only mission is to supply heat and energy to the body. This heat and energy is produced by hundreds of other foods. Corn starch, potatoes, wheat products and oatmeal supply this necessity and yet we put sugar on oatmeal.

"We are poor, misguided fools, help-

CAN'T TELL HOW EKLUND DIED

Medical Examiner Says Chauffeur May Have Been Drowned in Pond

Taunton, May 14.—Medical Examiner Charles A. Atwood, testifying today at the inquest into the death of Oliver L. Eklund, Providence chauffeur, whose body was found in a pond on May 3, refused to commit himself as to whether the young man was murdered or drowned.

Dr. Atwood, who was the first witness before Judge Frederick Austin in the District Court, said that the victim had a fractured skull which he believed was sufficient to have caused death. At the same time the fact that muddy water and grass were found in the lungs and stomach would lead to the belief that Eklund was alive when he fell into the pond.

Irving and Edward Eklund, brothers of the dead man, testified that he had no enemies, so far as they knew. Edwin K. Winn and Charles B. Lounsbury, who found the body, and Chief of Police James P. Crowley also testified. Judge Austin reserved his decision.

MILK COMPANY APPEALS COURT FINES OF $85

For the alleged removal of cream from milk the Elm Farm Milk Company, Wales place, Dorchester, was fined $75 by Judge Churchill in the Dorchester Court today. An additional fine of $10 was imposed for not having milk up to the standard. The company appealed and was held in $300. A fine of $10 was levied on the Turner Centre System, No. 56 Rollins street, Charlestown, for having unclean milk bottles.

Sugar Sells at 30 Cents in Suburbs as Authorities Go After Profiteers

In a drastic attempt to prevent profiteering on sugar and other staples the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life today sent out questionnaires to 7,000 retailers, demanding their margin of profit on twenty-seven articles.

In these questionnaires the dealers were commanded to state the amounts which they paid for goods and the price at which they were sold, these figures to be checked by local fair price committees.

It was stated that any evidence of exorbitant profits would be turned over to the Department of Justice for prosecution.

Figures were sought on various kinds and amounts of different commodities, such as tub butter and print butter, barrels and bags of flour, and large and small quantities of sugar.

The list of articles contained in the questionaire, which will be followed by similar action next week with wholesalers, included sugar, flour, rolled oats, cornmeal, rice, potatoes, eggs, cheese, butter oleomargarine, evaporated milk, condensed milk, lard substitutes, corn oil, cottonseed oil, dried beans, dried prunes, canned salmon, canner tomatoes, canned corn, canned beans, canned peas, lard, ham, bacon, salt pork, milk peanut butter, bread and soap.

The price of sugar reached a high mark of thirty cents a pound in Greater Boston today when a store in Weston demanded that amount, at the same time charging twenty-six cents for brown sugar. An increase was also reported in Dorchester.

SHORT OF SUGAR.

An acute shortage developed in Waltham, where a record figure of twenty-eight cents had previously obtained, but one store in the city offering the commodity for sale, at a price of twenty-six cents. For those who were willing to accept brown sugar, however, it was obtainable at the same price in one Waltham market.

In Newton sales were limited to one pound to a customer at twenty-six cents in a certain store, while another reported a limited quantity on hand at twenty-three cents.

Similar increases have been reported in other sections, despite the recently announced government restrictions on profits, and it was learned that the cost of raw sugar is climbing steadily.

As far as could be learned there have been no reductions as a result of the new Federal policy; on the contrary further increases are expected unless drastic action is taken.

Sugar is extremely hard to get, in many places the consumer being restricted to small amounts in the event that he is able to obtain any, although there were 25,000,000 pounds entered this port the first two days this week.

MAY GO HIGHER.

The majority of Dorchester stores maintained previous prices of 22 cents, but one advanced its price for the commodity to 24 cents, while others owned by the same concern were charging only 22 cents. Throughout this section, however, a range of from 22 to 27 cents was noted.

In South Boston no change was reported, 22 and 24 cents being the average selling price. In Watertown prices ranged from 23 to 27 cents. Wellesley stores all charged but 22 cents.

Brookline stores were offering sugar for 23 cents and 21 cents, Roxbury 22 cents, and Jamaica Plain 22 cents.

It was learned that the cost of raw sugar has been steadily mounting in the past seventeen days, as evidenced by the entry values recorded by the Custom House on cargoes reaching this port.

The cargo of the steamer Lake Wilson, consisting of 6,378,968 net pounds, which arrived on April 27, was valued at $.118 a pound.

On May 5 the Lake Arline arrived with 6,379,156 pounds, on which the value was given as $.148 per pound, an increase of three cents. On the 8th of May the Lake Louisa docked with 6,181,500 pounds, on which the value had risen to $.15, while two days later a cargo on the Lake Markham was valued at $.155.

The entry value of a cargo, according to the Customs Department, is the value which represents the price on an article in the market from which it is imported.

According to these figures, in two weeks foreign raw sugar markets have advanced more than 6 cents a pound, which is said to be evidence that the markets are being "manipulated."

Furthermore from April 27 to May 10 nearly 32,000,000 pounds were received in this port, with the incoming cargoes arriving regularly, thereby disposing of the claims of a shortage.

Malden Pupils March in Old Clothes

Malden's High School Old Clothes Club, 200 strong, paraded the streets of that city today. With clothing, conspicuously patched, old shoes and battered hats, the boys presented the appearance of tramps.

A score or more of the boys whose clothes were of the most antiquated type were sent home by Headmaster Thornton Jenkins on their arrival at the school. He told them to return with clothing not quite so grotesque.

The old clothes members held an indignation meeting, but finally decided to acquiesce to the schoolmaster's request.

SUGAR A 'POISON' SAYS EXPERT

Unnecessary as Food and Not as Good as Glucose, Declares Tech Professor

less because our forefathers fell for the sweet stuff of the old-time sugar profiteer. Stop it, now!

"Oatmeal is an overbalanced diet in itself. The added sugar makes it more palatable, it is true, but every ounce you put into your system makes for poor digestion and adds superfluous fat to your carcass.

"If you work out of doors, swinging a pick or chopping trees, you can stand the sugar poison; you burn it up in energy. But if you are employed at a sedentary occupation look out. You find yourself letting out your belt. You become languid, suffer from indigestion and almost every ailment known to modern science.

"Why? Sugar; that's the answer."

HABIT LIKE LIQUOR.

"Commercial sugar is on a par with alcohol—we get the liking for it and then we find ourselves in its grasp.

"If we must have our foods sweet it is easy to find something to take the place of sugar. Take glucose, for instance. At present it is considerably cheaper than sugar and, furthermore, it is procurable. We use it at my home almost exclusively for cooking purposes. We find it is more economical and healthier and at the same time we are doing our bit to hinder sugar profiteering.

"In short, sugar eating is a habit. Use it with moderation. Don't fool yourself that it is necessary for your existence. Eat fruit and vegetables and automatically the price of the commodity will fall."

Sugar Production Cut One-Half, Says Carver

Professor Thomas N. Carver, teacher of political economy at Harvard University, explained today why sugar is selling at a high price by saying that the world is producing less than one-half the amount it was producing previous to 1914.

"As every one knows, prohibition with its demands for more sweets makes sugar higher, as we are consuming more sugar than we were previous to 1914," said the professor.

"The high cost of sugar is not due to unscrupulous manipulation. If certain merchants have a lot of sugar on hand they are going to get what people will pay, but there is no unwarrantable combination to force prices up. The government could have bought up the supply, cornered the market, so to speak, and doled it out. Otherwise it is not at fault.

"Before the war Belgium and France produced a great deal of sugar. England and other European nations depended on those countries for their supply. The sugar-producing regions are now in a state of devastation and England is obliged to call upon Cuba, the source of supply for the United States; naturally severe competition has resulted."

CLOTHING COST CUT HARD

Unsettled Market Forcing Many Dealers to Lower Prices for Protection

A general tendency to reduce clothing prices, regarded as the first break in the high cost of living, is under way throughout the East.

The movement was inaugurated in New England by Springfield dealers in women's apparel, who engaged in a price cutting war, following the example set by a New York and Philadelphia department store, which cut prices on all merchandise 20 per cent.

Large retailers of dress goods in New York were reported to be slashing prices, cancellations of overdue Spring woolens and worsteds were growing and the woolen mills were said to be facing a serious problem.

It was pointed out that if the ready-to-wear trade decides the same as a majority of the men's wear dealers, there will be concerted action to bring down prices in all lines.

The crux of the situation is said to lie in New England, where the handling of the labor problem by the mills is being watched with intense interest in other States. If encouragement is given the demands of labor in this section, similar advances will be necessary at the nearby mills.

There are many, however, who urge closing the entire industry for a short time as the most effective step, these consisting largely of business men who have had difficulty in making shipments.

In Springfield, the price slashing, while starting on women's apparel, was said to be spreading to other articles of clothing. While the prices were said to be still in excess of those of 1915 and 1916, the reductions were greater than at any time since.

Dresses recently selling at $95 were marked $25, $35 and $50 in one of the largest department stores. Five dollar waists were reduced to $3, and silks, hose and underwear showed a proportionate decline.

The best silks were cut 50 per cent., the price of women's shoes was also cut and there has been a falling off in prices of men's ready-made suits.

These reductions, together with those made in other cities, were said to indicate that retailers are trying to get from under all their holdings as quickly as possible.

The cuts made by some of the large establishments were said to have been brought about by the tight money conditions, and were not philanthropy and public service. It was necessary for stocks to be liquidated so as to meet the overhead expense of doing business.

It was stated that no house can feel certain about the values of its competitors, owing to the unsettled condition of the material market, and consequently will keep prices as low as possible.

Averaging of material costs by placing goods bought at high prices in with the cheaper offerings accepted later will have the effect of disrupting value standards, it was pointed out. To offset this many concerns will guarantee prices while others will be forced to name rock-bottom values.

New York, May 14.—An English invasion of the American clothing market, if prices are not soon decreased, was predicted by J. C. Shannon, a British clothier, who arrived on the Cunard liner Carmania. Shannon said his firm could supply suits selling now from $60 to $80 at half that price, pay all charges of delivery and yet make a satisfactory profit.

Remmer is a wholesale day-goods merchant. He was testifying in Federal Court against Morelli and the latter's three brothers. He said that Morelli threatened at various times to shoot him, cut off an arm or leg, and cut him up in little pieces.

RENT UP 30 P. C., SAY TENANTS

Declare They Were Told to Pay New Rate or Move On

Forty per cent. increase in rent or eviction—this is the demand made by a Back Bay real estate firm, according to an affidavit filed today with the Mayor's committee on rent and housing.

The affidavit, filed by Arthur H. B. Capen of Hinsdale in behalf of Miss Helen Davies, occupant of Suite 19, No. 28 Westland avenue, charges Coleman & Gilbert, a real estate firm, with violation of a promise made to the committee that recent demands on tenants should be withdrawn.

The complaint is to the following effect: That about a fortnight ago the firm was complained of at a public hearing by about forty tenants, now members of the Boston American Tenants' League, who said that they had received "skeleton lease" blanks raising rents, with a letter stating that if the lease was not signed by May 15 the tenancy would be regarded as terminated July 31, "by mutual agreement"; that Chairman Malcolm E. Nichols, presiding officer, had pointed out to the landlords that such leases were invalid, and that Attorney Julius Nelson, for the firm, had promised that the demand should be withdrawn.

Continuing, the complainant charges that he called the firm by telephone and talked with a man who said he was Mr. Gilbert; that the complainant called attention to the case of Miss Davies, who was then paying $25 a month, and who was told that her rent would be raised to $35 August 1, and that if she did not sign the new lease by May 15 her tenancy would be terminated August 1.

This is in violation of the promise made by the firm's attorney, Mr. Capen charges. He says that the member he talked with admitted the letter to Miss Davies, but denied the promise understood to have been made by their counsel; and that this man said to him: "If we do not hear from Miss Davies by May 15, we will consider the tenancy terminated, and the next notice she will receive will be the next tenants moving in."

Besides the Westland avenue property, Coleman & Gilbert are said to control the "Minerva" apartment house at No. 331 Huntington avenue, and other Back Bay real estate.

PRISCILLA ALDEN THORP IS CAMBRIDGE BRIDE

In Cambridge today Miss Priscilla Alden Thorp, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Thorp of No. 115 Brattle street, Cambridge, a granddaughter of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, became the bride of Arthur Calvert Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Smith, of New Haven. The wedding took place at the Thorp home. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Samuel M. Crothers. Miss Thorp's only attendant was Miss Margaret Thayer. The best man was Edward Smith. The couple will make their home in New York City, where the bridegroom is engaged in the export business.

DANIELS CALLS SIMS UNFAIR

Latter's Criticisms of Army Transport Service Refuted by Secretary's Figures

By International News Service.

Washington, May 14.—In reply to reports that President Wilson would repudiate Secretary Daniels for making public the President's speech and his cablegram to Admiral Sims criticizing the British navy, Secretary Tumulty today said the President gave Daniels full permission to make the matters public.

By International News Service.

Washington, May 14.—Facing "innumerable obstacles" the United States placed an effective army on the battlefront in France in a shorter time than did the British.

This was declared by Secretary of the Navy Daniels today to the Senate sub-committee investigating charges made by Rear Admiral Sims against the conduct of the war by the Navy Department.

Quoting a report of Field Marshal Haig of the British forces, Daniels declared, "It will be observed that the British armies were unable to intervene until nearly two years had elapsed 'in sufficient strength adequately to assist our allies.'"

"The war was over, not two years, but nineteen months after the United States entered it," Daniels added.

"Yet the American Army had to be transported and supplied across 3,000 miles of ocean, in the face of a supreme effort of the German submarine, and then across the width of France, while Great Britain was within the sound of German guns."

"Admiral Sims charges that due to the shortcomings of the navy there was an unnecessary loss of 2,333,000 tons of shipping and 500,000 lives and that the war was prolonged 'at least four months.'

"The charge that the war was prolonged and that the loss of life resulted is serious. It was made with reckless disregard of the facts and the reasoning and statistics adduced in its support are those one might expect to find in the fantastic tales of Baron Munchausen or the statistics of a Colonel Mulberry Sellers. Even in making the charge he disregards his own facts.

"He was free to acclaim the small part the United States was taking in his view, when he said, but 3, 4, 5, or perhaps 6 per cent. of the naval forces in European waters were American, but in charging blame the mistakes of the Navy Department are given as the 100 per cent. reason for the prolongation of the war," Daniels declared.

SCORES SIMS CHARGES.

Statements made by Sims that 1,000,000 men should have been in France by March, 1918, were scored by the witness.

Answering the charge of "unpreparedness" made by Sims, Daniels declared:

"In his interesting story of the battle of Jutland Admiral Jellico, one of the best naval officers of the world, makes a number of statements which show that even the British navy could not be 100 per cent. perfect. He shows that the British fleet in the battle of Jutland did not have the preponderating strength the world supposed."

"LEGAL REPRESSION" IS OPPOSED BY HOOVER

Washington, May 14.—The use of "legal repression"—of the injunction and compulsory arbitration—in industrial disputes was condemned today by Herbert Hoover before the Senate Committee on Labor and Education. The committee is holding hearings on the resolution of Senator Kenyon, its chairman, providing for the creation of an "industrial congress" to devise machinery for the settlement of differences between the employer and employee.

SUSPECT NEWS IS CENSORED BY SOVIET

London, May 14.—The first Russian wireless message received since last Sunday was picked up today. It was addressed to the Foreign Office and was dated Monday. The contents referred to Crimea. This message led to the belief that the silence of the Moscow wireless plant resulted from censorship imposed by the Soviet to cover up anti-Polish moves.

LAW FAILS TO PUT BAN ON APOPLECTIC DRIVERS OF AUTOS

PERSONS WHO MAY COLLAPSE AT WHEEL GET LICENSE

What protection have the citizens of Massachusetts against injury by automobiles driven by victims of heart trouble, apoplexy, cerebro-hemorrhage and similar diseases liable to cause sudden death?

What protection has the public against death or injury beneath the wheels of a powerful motor vehicle driven by a person subject to catalepsy, fainting spells or periods of coma?

The answer is—None.

Any person may apply to the State Highway Commission for a license to operate a motor vehicle. By filling out a certified statement, signed by two other citizens, to the effect that he has driven 500 miles under instruction, he may obtain permission to operate a motor car on the public highways.

EPILEPTICS BARRED.

An application for a chauffeur's license is forced to demontrate his ability, but as far as physical condition is concern the only precaution taken in issuing licenses is to see that they are not given to epileptics or insane persons.

Only yesterday Arthur Craigin of Somerville dropped dead at the wheel of his auto truck at Summer and High streets. That no one was killed by the uncontrolled truck was due to its running against another automobile which checked its career.

The State believes it would be impossible to examine all applicants for drivers' and chauffeurs' licenses, to determine whether they have heart trouble, according to Frank Goodwin, Chief Registrar of Automobiles for Massachusetts. It would cost too much money and necessitate a small army of doctors.

Registrar Goodwin, in commenting on the Craigin case, remarked that such deaths, of heart disease, were so rare in chauffeurs that it was the only case he had ever heard of. "Undoubtedly there may have been one or two others," said he, "but I do not know of them. Undoubtedly, also, if they were common, it would be necessary to take measures to prevent such drivers having trucks or cars in their control. But circumstances do not warrant a medical examination for chauffeurs, as yet.

STATEMENT OF INFIRMITY

"I would like to emphasize, however, that clause in a chauffeur's application for license which directs that the applicant state what physical infirmity he has, if any. He makes a statement in regard to his condition, under his solmen oath. Licenses are issued, after this information has been carefully sifted. For instance, we never issue licenses to epileptics, no matter how carefully they drive. Similarly we never issue licenses to insane persons.

"A case in point is of a person who has suffered from insanity, repetitioning for a license. His petition had hardly reached us before information from the police in his vicinity came that he had been insane. He will not get a license.

COMPILING STATISTICS.

"The real danger with automobiles lies in the irresponsible driver, who goes with erratic disregard of the lives of others. He it is that this department is campaigning against. In the last two months we have been making statistics of all accidents, to determine just their cause. The cause found, we shall eliminate it, if it means the denial of thousands of licenses. Lives on the public highway must be protected.

"This is more needful now than ever before, when we consider figures. For, in Massachusetts two days ago, there were registered 168,200 pleasure cars and 40,325 trucks. There were, besides, roughly speaking, about 7,000 additional dealers' cars. This large number of motor vehicles, augmented by 9,050 motor cycles, increases the possibility of accident amazingly.

"This department believes in great caution, at the very first, in issuing licenses. The preventative measure of withholding licenses at first, will stop more accidents than much remedial action later, after the accident has happened."

3,000 MEN LOST BY CARRANZA

Revolutionists Are Trying to Surround Troops Fighting for 'First Chief'

By International News Service.

Vera Cruz, May 14.—Revolutionary troops attacked the Carranza forces near San Marcos, inflicting losses of nearly 3,000, according to unconfirmed reports from the fighting front today.

The Carranza troops were said to have been driven from their positions and are now making stubborn resistance at the Hacienda of Tamariz, State of Puebla. The revolutionary army is attempting an encircling movement.

The revolutionaries number about 16,000, while Carranza was said to have only about 5,000 or 6,000 soldiers. In revolutionary circles it was said that news of the surrender of the Carranzistas was expected hourly. It is believed that safe conduct will be granted to Carranza so that he can come to this port and embark upon a ship for some foreign port.

FIND CLEW TO PAUL PAPPAS

Suspect in Death of Boston Woman Was in Western City in March

Paul Daskalakis, better known as Paul Pappas, alleged slayer of Mrs. Alice Arsenault, keeper of a lodging house on Columbus avenue, on Christmas Day, was in the United States as recently as March.

The police working on the case have discovered that Pappas was in a Western city on March 2. They know that he sent postal cards from the West to his relatives in the western part of the State. These postals were turned over to the police of Boston by a brother of Pappas, who resides in Chicopee.

Photographs have been sent to two cities in the hope that through them the much wanted Greek will be located and arrested.

Prior to coming to Boston Pappas lived in Akron, O. He left there about two years ago and came East.

Recently a man named Pappas was arrested in Akron on the charge of conducting a disorderly lodging house. He was sentenced to pay a $500 fine. He managed to get away from the courthouse and defaulted.

Adelard Arsenault, a half-brother of the dead woman, is expected to tell what he knows about his sister and her relations with Pappas. He was located in Springfield.

FAVORS CONTROL OF 'GAS BARONS'

C. F. Wood Urges Action to Check Profiteering as Supply Vanishes

That the only way to prevent the price of gasoline going higher, as the oil supply diminishes, is government regulation to eliminate unwarranted profits by the "gas barons," was the view expressed today by C. F. Woods, vice-president of one of the leading analytical research bureaus.

He pointed out that the American petroleum supply is fast nearing the vanishing point and consumption today is ahead of production. "America should wake up to this fact," he said. "Our resources of oil are well known by geologists and it is figured that about fifteen years will see the supply practically exhausted. The resources of the world are limited and we can draw on other countries at their price only indefinitely."

"In such a situation there is bound to be a tremendous shortage of oil not only for lubrication purposes, but for motive power, and those who control the available supply will be able to command their price. The law of supply and demand works here. Of course, the government could step in and prevent unreasonable profits.

"We must strive for a substitute. The large oil companies are busy experimenting, for obviously when the end is reached in oil they will have great supplies of storage facilities and pipe lines on hand. One concern has brought out an alcohol substitute, but there are many obstacles. The question of securing the raw material to make alcohol must be considered.

"There was a time when people feared an exhaustion of the nitrate supply, chiefly in Chile, but chemists got busy and now a substitute, nitrogen, is extracted from the air. This solved that problem.

"Possibly some one will turn up with a substitute for gasoline, derived from a source not known today."

100 NANTASKET COTTAGES LOOTED BY VANDALS

Wholesale looting of more than 100 Summer homes in Hull and Nantasket by thieves in search of liquor aroused wide indignation among the colonists today, who found that property damage and loss of goods will reach thousands of dollars. A searching investigation of the depredations is already under way.

Medical cabinets were ripped from their fastening and other receptacles believed to contain liquor were broken open. Household articles, many of them of considerable value, were taken away. Pieces of furniture too large to carry away were wrecked. Pianos and phonographs were destroyed by acts of vandalism.

STOLE CIDER AND "CALLED ON" JUDGE

TWO SLAYERS DIE IN CHAIR

Mother Refused Permission to Accompany Cantine to Death Chamber at Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., May 14.—Within earshot of a vaudeville performance, music by a "jazz" orchestra, laughter and applause, Rickey Harrison and Chester Cantine, convicted murderers, went to their death at midnight in the electric chair.

Both men, in cells in the death house, only a short distances away from an improvised theatre where other convicts were giving an amateur show for 800 guests, spent the night hours prior to their execution on their knees, Harrison with Rev. Fr. Caspin, and Cantine with Rev. A. N. Peterson, the Protestant chaplain.

Cantine, whose mother had pleaded vainly with State authorities to allow her to accompany her son on his tragic walk from the death house to the chair, was the first to go. His end was made more grim by a ray of hope that came when he was halted for a moment just outside the door of the chamber. Believing that a stay in the execution might have been granted, Cantine exclaimed, "They won't let me go!" The next moment the door opened to him and he said, "Good-bye, everybody."

A second current was necessary owing to Cantine's great vitality.

Harrison's prayers were interrupted for a tragic parting with his wife and child. He had exhausted every means of appeal, both to the Supreme Court of the United States and to the Governor for clemency.

To Turn Bamboo Into British Newsprint

London, May 14.—The use of newsprint made from bamboo is one of the measures contemplated by the British newspaper publishers to meet the world's white paper shortage.

W. Raitt, cellulose expert of the government of India, who has had twenty-five years' experience in experimental work with bamboo pulp, states there is sufficient bamboo in sight in Burmah, with the Savannah grasses of Assam, to produce 14,000,000 tons of dry pulp annually.

BOSTON ALIENS INCREASE

More Arrive Than Leave This Port, Immigration Figures Show

More than twenty-five times as many aliens are coming into the port of Boston than are leaving here, according to tabulations made by Chief Statistician F. W. Quinn of the local immigration office.

As an example of this, 1,975 passengers arrived here on the White Star liner in one day, while the total passenger sailings the first of the year amount only to 285.

The low rate of exchange and the high wages now prevalent in the United States are attracting aliens here in large numbers, according to Mr. Quinn. The Italian lire is worth but 4.75 cents, instead of the usual 20 cents.

Of the Cretic's list 65 per cent were males, and the majority of them laborers. Six hundred and thirty of them had been here before, but were reservists in their native armies, and went home to fight.

By months the sailings since January 1 from this port are as follows: January, 51; February, 63; March, 88; April, none; May to date, 177.

There are no bookings available for passengers sailing from this port until September, and passenger space on boats leaving here is at a great premium. The last time the Winifredian sailed as high as $50 was paid by passengers for the use of officers' staterooms.

Mr. Quinn does not expect passenger service to improve as long as freight rates on ocean-going craft are high.

150 QUARTS OF LIQUOR IS SEIZED AT BORDER

Derby Line, Vt., May 14.—An automobile containing 124 quarts of gin and twenty-six quarts of whiskey was seized by sheriffs as it was crossing the line from Canada into this town.

EXPERT TO HELP ROLLINS BOYS

Official Who Had Charge of Murphy Wants to Testify at Hearing

Dr. W. M. Lynch, superintendent of the State Asylum for the Criminally Insane at Farview, Pa., where Jesse Murphy, who confessed in the Rollins cases, was confined for a time, sent word to Major Thomas L. Walsh today that he wanted to come to Boston to testify at the hearing for a new trial for both boys.

"The authorities must surely be impressed by the confession," he wrote, "and there are many details concerning it on which I can be of assistance. Particularly the question of Murphy's sanity, which was raised when the American first published the confession in brief form last December.

"Murphy has since told me, and I had more or less suspected before, that he had been shamming insanity, and he proved himself a master at that game. His purpose was to get to an insane asylum rather than State prison. I will surely be there, and any of the hospital officials or attendants you may need will accompany me."

The official family of Sheriff John A. Keliher is awaiting the hearing, for without exception they believe George Rollins innocent of the crime charged to him. For three years the young man has been in the jail. Never has his cheerfulness relaxed, never has he failed to be the prime mover in any activity of the prisoners.

MANY WAR TROPHIES FOR BAY STATE

Washington, D. C., May 14—Congressman Olney's bill providing for the distribution of captured German cannon and other war trophies on the basis of the number of soldiers in the war military establishment from the several States was favorably reported by the House Committee on Military Affairs. On the basis of allotment Massachusetts is entitled to eighty-nine big guns, 3,000 rifles, 416 machine guns, 10,000 German helmet ornaments and 6,700 buckles and belts.

DISPUTE CASH BONUS PLAN

Disagreement of Republicans Holds Up Soldiers' Award Bill in Committee

By International News Service.

Washington, May 14.—Soldier bonus legislation will not be completed by Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee before next week, but Chairman Fordney hopes to call it up for action in the House Thursday.

Presentation of completed legislation to the Democratic members of the committee, scheduled for today, had to be abandoned because Republican members themselves could reach no agreement. It is stated that five Republican members of the committee are doubtful whether they will support any cash bonus.

Should these members hold out in opposition to cash payments, they will be joined by a number of Southern Democratic members of the committee and the combined opposition would again throw into confusion all plans laid by Fordney and his associates.

WEST POINTERS 'TAPE' VICTIMS

Officers Not Taught to "Pass Buck;" System Is Common, Says Colonel Drennan

West Pointers are the victims and not the originators of red tape in the army, according to a statement issued by Lieutenant-Colonel L. H. Drennan in answer to recent charges made by Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard. Lieutenant-Colonel Drennan is a West Point graduate. He is at present an air service officer assigned to duty in Boston.

He says in part:

"In connection with Dr. Eliot's remarks on West Point, I might say that West Point was not founded with the idea of setting a standard for scholastic achievement.

"Dr. Eliot is mistaken when he intimates that West Point is responsible for army red tape. This system is not prescribed by the officers of the army. Army officers work under this system and do the best they can in spite of it. Red tape is a characteristic of governmental agencies the world over.

"As for 'passing the buck,' West Point does not teach its graduates to shirk responsibility. If some of them do it, it is in spite of West Point. The most conspicuous example of this that I have observed so far is laying the responsibility for all our failures upon West Point. If "West Point does take some rather badly-prepared material, but it must be recalled that much of this bad material is rejected during the first year.

"The expansion of a small army of 100,000 men to an army of 5,000,000 is stretching things out pretty thin. Men whose ambition it was to command companies in war found themselves in command of battalions, or involved in a maze of administrative paper work which they had always despised and avoided. Much of the routine was prescribed by business experts, employed to introduce efficiency methods into the army, and the operation of some of these methods threw a new light on the business system of the country in the minds of many army officers."

CAN'T THINK AS YOU PLEASE, SAYS DR. HORR

"No man has a right to think as he pleases," declares Rev. Dr. George F. Horr, president of Newton Theological School, in answer to a young theologue who wanted to "run amuck with his thoughts." Dr. Horr said: "It is often said that a man has a right to think as he pleases. That is just what no living soul has any right to do. His only right is to think according to the facts of the case and according to the laws of thought."

JUDGE HALTS GIRL'S TRIAL

Jennie Zimmerman Unable to Continue Testimony; Case Adjourned Till Monday

Springfield, May 14.—Owing to the highstrung, emotional condition of Jennie G. Zimmerman, on trial here for the shooting to death of her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman, the trial was today adjourned until Monday by Judge Brown. The alleged motive for the murder of Dr. Zimmerman was that he refused to marry after having betrayed the girl.

Jennie was brought into court shortly after 10 a. m. by Miss Elizabeth Mahoney, jail matron, who has been her constant companion and comforter during the trial. The girl, dressed in the same green coat over a blue suit that she has worn thus far throughout the hearings, showed plainly the effects of the collapse she suffered at the close of Thursday's testimony. Barely able to walk, she sank into a chair, huddled down in her long coat, trembling violently, and began to weep.

During the ten minutes or so before Judge Brown entered the courtroom, her emotion increased. For the first time the girl's weeping became audible, with long-drawn, racking sobs that shook her whole body and greatly moved the spectators and court officials.

Judge Brown, noting her condition, held a short conference with counsel, at the end of which he said that in view of Jennie's state it seemed advisable to adjourn until Monday. The defendant was half-led, half-carried out by Miss Mahoney and a court officer, and on her arrival at the jail a physician was at once sent for.

For Itching Eczema, Old Sores and Piles

"I guarantee my ointment," says Peterson of Buffalo, "to heal eczema; to stop the itching at once and any reliable druggist will cheerfully refund your money if PETERSON'S OINTMENT doesn't do everything I say it will do."

William A. Carley of Franklin, N. Y., is surely a wise man. He writes: "I used PETERSON'S OINTMENT on a little boy suffering terribly with eczema. It did the work."

Then there is Alex. Louttel, a brave fireman of Buffalo, who is glad to write as follows: "I had an old sore on my leg for many years. The best doctors failed. PETERSON'S OINTMENT entirely healed the sore quickly." And from over in Canada comes a letter from A. Blockeby, stating: "The best thing I ever hit for itching piles is PETERSON'S OINTMENT." A big box for 35 cents. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

FAVOR ONE-WAY KINGSTON ST.

Majority of Merchants Declare Traffic Should Be Made to Move Westward

Kingston street should be made a one-way thoroughfare, with traffic going west, a majority of business men along that street interviewed today declared.

Frequent traffic tie-ups during a business day on the narrow street, which begins at Summer, causes confusion, delays to freight shipments, and consequent disorder of business, they asserted.

Although some favored regulating traffic for east-bound vehicles only, for all of Kingston street, as is now done for the small stretch between Essex street and Bedford square, a larger number said there would be a greater advantage in the west-bound rule, as this would provide a direct outlet to the freight stations of the B. & A. and N. Y., N. H. & H. railroads. Most of the Kingston street firms are in the wholesale trade, and dependent upon prompt service between their places and the freight stations.

TOO MANY TRAFFIC BLOCKS.

The following expressions were given to a representative of the Boston American:

George H. Brauer, manager George L. Dodd Company, No. 21 Kingston street: "Something should be done to eliminate the confusion on Kingston street. Traffic tie-ups along here are numerous. A one way street with traffic west bound appears the best solution, but it should be made in the same direction for the whole street. If our section of the street should be made west bound and that below Bedford square should continue east bound, there would be more confusion.

"I believe that whatever direction the traffic is made it should alternate with that of Chauncy street or the present rule on Chauncy street altered to confirm with that proposed for Kingston.'

W. J. Furlong, treasurer of the W. H. W. Teele Hardware Company, No. 21 Kinston: "I believe Kingston should be made a one-way street. There are a dozen tie-ups daily now. Half the time trucks can't get to our doors. A West-bound rule would seem the logical one for traffic, as that would make a direct outlet to the freight stations.

SHOULD TEAR UP TRACKS.

"While the public attention is directed toward Kingston street, a movement should be started to tear up the old street car tracks, now rarely used, and which are an impediment to vehicular traffic."

E. D. Brine, executive of the Kingston Knitting Company, No. 37 Kingston street: "I would certainly favor a movement intended to improve traffic conditions on Kingston street. At present the confusion is often so bad that it is impossible to cross the street afoot. I believe that it should be made a one-way street through to Essex."

I. Kolikoff of M. Kolikoff & Sons, No. 30 Kingston street: "Our shipments are often delayed a half-hour at a time between the trucks and the store because of the confusion on Kingston street. I would favor making it a one-way street, and believe that the traffic should be west bound."

TOO CROWDED FOR SAFETY.

D. Rice, manager of Lion Neckwear Company, No. 24 Kingston street: "The person who leaves a car standing in Kingston street now can be pretty sure of not finding it in the same condition when he returns. Fenders are smashed and other protruding parts of automobiles damaged in the constant mixup along the street. I think a one way rule would be a great help.

Samuel Weber, manager of the W. B. Mfg. Co., No. 18 Kingston street: "The confusion on Kingston street is bad. I believe it should be a one way street and the traffic restricted for east-bound vehicles. However, I should be willing to abide by the wishes of a majority of the Kingston street business men."

H. L. Royer, Royer Talking Machine Company, No. 1 Kingston street: "I am heartily in favor of a one-way, west-bound Kingston street. Business houses would quickly adopt themselves to the change and would not suffer from it. It is entirely a question of habit. For vehicles bound in the opposite direction only a short tour around Bedford street, Church Green and Summer street would be necessary."

MOST LOGICAL REMEDY.

Charles Wolbarst, manager of Peerless Hat Company, No. 33 Kingston street: "I would favor the proposed change for Kingston street. Existing conditions are certainly bad and the proposed change seems the most logical remedy."

Jacob Meyers, president of the J. Meyers Company, No. 29 Kingston street: "I have no complaint with the present conditions. I believe there would be as much confusion from a one-way street as that where traffic is permitted to go in each direction. But if a majority of Kingston street business men favor the one-way street, it will have my support."

A. L. Lothow, manager of Kingston Manufacturing Company, and L. & R. Mfg. Co., No. 19 Kingston street: "I would oppose making Kingston a one-way street. The delays caused by detours of teamsters would cause inconvenience in our business."

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—Advertisement.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How to Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing these disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.—Advertisement.

INDIGESTION, ACID STOMACH, SOUR STOMACH, BLOATED FEELING, PAIN AROUND THE HEART CAUSED BY GAS

MAKE you feel numb, nervous and irritable, not able to sleep or enjoy a good meal.

If you are suffering from any of these disagreeable conditions, go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of SISTER MARY'S COMPOUND.

It will absorb the acids and gases always present in the stomach and carry them out of the system, at the same time healing the irritation that these various conditions cause. Every ingredient used in Sister Mary's Compound is a mild laxative and has been used and recognized by physicians all over the world for hundreds of years for its food and medicinal values.

Sister Mary's Compound has been pronounced, by chemists, and people from all parts of the United States who have used it, the best and most effective preparation procurable today for stomach and lung troubles. Ask for "THE BIG LITTLE BOTTLE."

America a Nation of Liars, Says Pastor

New Brunswick, N. J., May 14.—"We are becoming a nation of liars," said the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Old Plymouth Church in Brooklyn, in a lecture here on Americanism.

In explaining his statement, he said: "Capital steals wages and labor steals time. We do not abide by solemn industrial compacts. A republic of people who do business in that spirit is like a house built on sand."

Mr. Hillis said that a wave of lawlessness is sweeping the country and that worse things occurred in Boston during the police strike than in Louvain during its occupation by the Huns.

SOUTH POLE MEATS SERVED AT SHEPARD'S

Practical demonstration of the fact that excellent meat may be had at a cost of less than 5 cents per pound was the feature of a dinner given in honor of Sir Ernest Shackleton, commander of the Robertson Cole expedition to the South Pole, at the Shepard Colonial Restaurants, when various kinds of meat brought back from the South Pole with the expedition were served.

Millions of meat and fur-bearing animals are to be had merely for the going after. The meat of the sea elephant is superior in many ways to beefsteak, while the penguin has the flavor of the finest duck, it was announced.

Among those present were Mayor Peters, Colonel Hugh J. Gallagher, Dr. Owen B. Adams, R. M. Washburn, General Clarence R. Edwards and staff, Colonel Kean, Dr. Charles Fleischer, British Consul-General Marlow, John Shepard and Joseph A. Conry. The dinner was directed by Major Frederick de T. Craven of the British Imperial Defence Service.

The preparation of the polar meat, which had been frozen for more than two years, was under the supervision of John E. Norwak, manager of the Shepard Colonial Restaurants, following a special course in the preparation of these foods.

Following the dinner moving pictures of the trip to the bottom of the world and the sinking of the steamer Endurance were shown.

LITTLE HEED PAID TO WILSON IN BRITAIN

London, May 14.—British newspapers are making only slight editorial reference to the revelations of President Wilson's address to the officers of the Atlantic fleet when the United States entered the war.

"Wilson—Naval Expert," was the headline used by the Globe over its news story from Washington.

The Standard printed a flaring headline, saying:

"'Helpless British Admiralty,' so said Mr. Wilson."

$1,000,000 FOR STREET WORK

Roslindale and West Roxbury Improvements to Begin at Once, Says Official

Expenditure of nearly $1,000,000 on the streets of Roslindale and West Roxbury was promised by Commissioner of Public Works Thomas F. Sullivan, following the Boston American's exposure of conditions in those suburbs.

Work will begin at once, Mr. Sullivan declared. In addition to the street work, drainage defects are to be remedied, and the two communities are to get more attention than they have been getting from City Hall.

Leading citizens hope that Commissioner Sullivan's promise will be made good, and that he may even be able to do more than he has agreed. Streets in West Roxbury are almost impassable, and residents fear that even the large sum promised will not pay for making all streets fit for traffic.

ON FIVE STREETS.

The following repairs will be started immediately:

Washington street, from Archdale road to Ashland street, granite block paving. Estimated cost, $219,500.

Centre street, from Allandale to South streets, asphalt or Topeka pavement. Cost, $66,665.

Centre street, from South to Spring streets, asphalt paving. Cost, $298,000.

Grove street, from Washington to Centre streets, asphalt. Cost, $210,000.

Belgrade avenue extension, from Beech street, asphalt. Cost, $80,300.

Archdale road constructions. Cost $18,250.

In the meantime private citizens and the civic organizations are not laying back on their oars waiting for kind hearted officials at City Hall to aid them. They are carrying on the campaign of educating their fellow citizens in the affected suburbs to the manner in which they are being neglected.

YEARS OF NEGLECT.

"Streets in West Roxbury are in abominable condition," said Attorney Thomas J. Grady, who resides in that district. "They have been absolutely neglected for the past five years. Nothing has been done on them to amount to anything during that period.

"I believe that an examination of the records in the Street Commissioner's office will show that less money has been spent in West Roxbury during the past ten years than in any other part of the city.

"The policy of city officials seems to be to save as much money as possible, irrespective of the comfort of the people. I would be willing to have 15 or 20 cents added to the tax rate for the next ten or fifteen years if we would get good streets. I think such an addition would be justified. I, as a property holder would be willing to pay it.

"The city officials have been widening Centre street for the past two years and they are going so slowly on the work that it will take twenty years at the present rate to complete the job. They are not working half the time there, and when they are, not more than half the men are at work."

CENTRE STREET A MENACE.

Centre street is the direct route from the Fenway in Jamaica Plain to Dedham and it is in such terrible condition, so rocky and full of ruts, that a man jeopardizes his machine to drive over it. He not only gets a severe shaking every time he rides over it, but he is apt to break the springs of his car.

"The city is also neglecting the West Roxbury district as regards repair of dirt sidewalks and sewers. The catch basins on Centre street are always overflowing as the result of being plugged up with mud. The sidewalks are washed out in many places and no attempt is made to put them in good condition again.

"As for the street car service—it is rotten. No other word describes it. The cars are old, dilapidated, made-over affairs and they are in filthy, nasty condition. Windows in many of them are broken. They ought to be pensioned and thrown into a junk heap. The West Roxbury car service is worse than you would expect in the rural parts of Maine."

IN POOR CONDITION.

Robert T. Fowler, a prominent Boston real estate operator, who lives at No. 143 Mt. Vernon street, West Roxbury, said: "I think the streets of West Roxbury are more neglected than those of any other section of Boston. There isn't a main artery through Roslindale or West Roxbury that is in good condition. Other sections of the city, such as Dorchester and Brighton, have from one to three main arteries in good condition.

"I was talking to Joe Lyons (Mayor Peters' close friend) the other day and complained of the need of better streets in West Roxbury, and he said the streets downtown ought to be fixed up first. I don't think that's right. I think we are entitled to some consideration.

EXPERT NEEDED.

"The trouble is that they should have somebody in the street department who knows something about scientific patching of streets. They ought to go out to Newton and see how they do it there. From two to three miles of streets are patched by one group of workers there in a day.

Boston they work like schoolboys. written to the Mayor a couple of es, but all the satisfaction I get in letter in reply that he will take matter under consideration.

'I was out riding with Joe Lyons other day and I pointed out a cer- in street in West Roxbury and id, 'There's a good street, and it's only one in the whole district it is in good condition.' I think mething ought to be done to rem- y matters.

"As regards street car service— 've got the worst cars in the city Boston. They say they can't use large cars because of the curve Beach and Centre streets but they anaged to do so during the big orms last winter when the other rs couldn't move. If they could it then, they can now."

To Be Continued.

The Secret of Keeping The Skin Wrinkle-Free

The great secret of keeping the face smooth, wrinkle-free and refined in texture is to use an effective astringent when the skin shows a tendency to become loose or the pores to enlarge. The best thing of the kind is a simple solution made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half-pint of witch hazel. Used as a wash lotion, this promptly tightens the skin, which, of course, smoothes out the lines and wrinkles and reduces too-large pores.

Large pores, by the way, encourage blackheads, being so easily clogged with dirt and grime. The lotion referred to, therefore, serves as a blackhead preventive. It is also valuable in cases of sagging cheeks and chin, the astringent action, of course, serving to "draw in" the folds and obliterate the creases. Powdered saxolite now being sold by druggists generally in this country, any woman can make this lotion herself.—Advertisement.

Such patriots really should appear at the Department of Justice saying: "Please tie me up, somehow I want to be protected against myself, before I kill the goose that lays the golden egg, or before the goose turns wild and suppresses me. I have a wonderfully good thing, but can't let well enough alone, help me."

Monsieur Tery, learned editor of L'Oeuvre, tells Universal Service that world power is now divided wholesale, "Asia, organizing; America, getting more powerful every day, and Europe declining will be the three competing for power."

Asia is to be watched, not feared. As long as Japanese hate Chinese and vice versa, as long as India is divided into castes, the upper despising the lower, as long as Buddhists hate and despise Mohammedans more than they do Christians, dangers in the organization of Asia will remain.

There are two great world powers, England and America, and England, with ten times the intelligent statesmanship of America, is, thanks to the peace treaty, the great power.

This country has in power homogeniety, a hundred million people substantially alike in thought, and plans. It has, the advantage of free trade between 48 great States, and has isolation, which it should have brains enough to preserve.

England has the plums of the earth picked here and there. Germany has reserve power of intense capacity to work. France, intellectually and physically, is like a keen razor blade compared with duller tools of inferior metal.

The inhabitants of western Europe and their descendants, transplanted here in America, can continue to rule the earth if they choose and if they will stop murdering each other.

England probably will head the procession for a while. One of these days one of her colonial daughters will outgrow her. One of these days perhaps the United States will take the lead in power. She might have taken it at the peace conference.

WON ADMIRATION OF ALL.

Men of every rank and shade respected him. The doughboys worshipped him. He won their admiration in the first brush with the enemy at Apremont in April, 1918. It was in that encounter that he was gassed and the poison of it and the strain caused the cancerous growth in his intestines from which he died at the age of forty.

He was ordered home for proper treatment, but refused to leave his regiment, went through all the later battles and returned with the division.

The Medal of Honor, the highest reward that can be bestowed on an American soldier, was awarded by Congress, and news of it came in his dying moments. The nurse said Father De Valles stretched out his arms, whispered thanks to God as she read the announcement, then he smiled, tears moistened his cheeks, and in less than an hour his soul had gone to a greater reward.

Father De Valles was one of the first two chaplains in the A. E. F. [illegible] for gallantry in action. The other was the Rev. Walter S. Danker of Worcester, who was later killed by a shell. Both received Croix de Guerre the day the 104th Infantry was honored by the French government, being the first American regiment in history to be decorated by a foreign government.

[illegible] De Valles, therefore, was [illegible] World War and the first [illegible] of [illegible] chaplain [illegible] for bravery.

WAR-RICH WORKERS CAUSE MANY AUTO SMASHUPS

By CHARLES O. POWER.

The answer to the question: Why are there so many automobile and carriage accidents in Massachusetts and elsewhere nowadays, [illegible] as follows:

High war wages, wages and profits have [illegible] people who had never thought [illegible] would ever see more than enough [illegible] to meet current household expenses and have a family movie party once in a while so many dollars that they did not know what to do with the surplus. [illegible] and carr[illegible] [illegible] have done an unprecedented business in the last year and a half.

Many of these suddenly and [illegible] [illegible] conversant with some of our manners and customs [illegible] or horse [illegible]

EASY TO GET LICENSE

All the owner of an automobile has to do to secure an operator's license is to make a sworn statement in his application that he has operated the car [illegible]. Of course he must pay [illegible] license fee. There is no [illegible] of the applicant's ability to [illegible] [illegible] parks and highways [illegible] with traffic of all kinds [illegible] the great essential, self control [illegible] emergency. The [illegible] confused and excited and lost [illegible] and their machines [illegible] completely [illegible]. The result was accidents of [illegible] descriptions. Pedestrians were [illegible] they could not fathom what the inexperienced man was trying to do [illegible] of the uncertain [illegible] serpentine courses pursued by these machines.

CAUSE MANY ACCIDENTS

This sort of thing really is one of the great causes of the big increase in accidents to occupants of cars and carriages. Much injury to persons and cars might have been obviated, indeed surely would have been obviated had these new drivers been obliged to learn how to manage their machines and control themselves while behind a steering wheel. It would have been no hardship to them or their families and would have saved them much physical pain and property loss.

These facts are officially admitted. The new automobile division of the State Public Service Commission is facing the facts and may be expected to take appropriate action soon, action that will not be harsh upon these people who should enjoy the new opportunities to the full, but will protect them against [illegible] also safeguarding the rest of the riding and walking public. The Highway Safety League has tried for several years to have the Legislature [illegible] a law requiring the testing of every [illegible] for an operator's license as [illegible] as for a chauffeur's [illegible]

FAILED TO PRESS BILL

A bill to this effect was before the Legislature this year, but was given "next General Court" because the League did not press it, preferring to learn the attitude of the new commission. So that nothing can be done about it until next Spring. The bill has met with opposition from the automobile dealers and associations in the past on the theory that it would compel owners of private cars to be as expert as professional chauffeurs. [illegible]

[illegible] Chairman Cole and other [illegible] officers of the Highway Safety League assert that a law [illegible] would be a blessing in [illegible] ways [illegible] make for better driving and [illegible] safer for [illegible] but would [illegible] revenue sufficient to develop an adequate inspector staff. There are [illegible] inspectors now, but [illegible] taken up examining [illegible] and investigating [illegible] cases of accidents [illegible] have no time for preventive work and the need [illegible] is tremendous. It seems [illegible] an inspection force should be used [illegible] for after accident work and no time or attention devoted to prevention efforts. But that is the situation today in this important State department and it is not a new situation by any means.

COLE TO STUDY PROBLEM

Because of his many other duties as chairman of the [illegible] Public Works Commission, which is a consolidation of several former departments, Chairman Cole has not had the time to give to the automobile situation the attention which he says he appreciates it deserves. But it is his intention to [illegible] comprehensive study of it very [illegible]. In a general way he has many [illegible] for improvement and among them is this idea for a larger inspection staff developed on broad lines. He says he realizes there is much merit in the arguments supporting the demand for higher patrol by State guards or inspectors.

There will be a move soon for the establishment of such a safety patrol. The idea behind it is this. The revenue derived from fees for the examination of applicants for operators' [illegible] would more than meet the expense of an inspection force twice the size of the present one. These additional men could be assigned by districts for the purpose of enforcing the laws relative to automobiling. Their duties would not be to make as many arrests as possible for violations but [illegible] as advisers principally, to appeal to drivers' sense of fair play and [illegible] co-operation in the effort to [illegible] safe. [illegible]

Francis Hurtubis, Jr., who represents the [illegible] Highways Association of New England, says there is great need for patrol work of this nature. He is perhaps as well informed on automobile laws and courtesies as any man in the country. He spends a great deal of the time on the roads of New England seeing that the red bands which give directions and distances to motorists are conspicuously located. He meets with all kinds of [illegible] in cars and can [illegible] argument for an [illegible] highway safety patrol [illegible] of personal incident.

Mr. Hurtubis was for many years at the head of the Automobile Legal Association in this State and advocated at several sessions of the Legislature the passage of an act that would provide for the safeguarding of life and property on the highways by the establishing of a proper inspection force that would first advise, then warn and then act vigorously. He contends that his larger experience has convinced him that there is greater need than ever for such a [illegible]. The average man is all right [illegible] but [illegible] comes a [illegible] he is tempted [illegible] speed up [illegible] perhaps on a highway [illegible] suggestion is made [illegible] that he knows better he will respond like a regular fellow. He won't do it again.

TO FORCE CO-OPERATION

More than that he will co-operate with the cop by setting a good example and telling the story. If the [illegible] persist in [illegible] after [illegible] warned [illegible] highway cop [illegible] at once. And [illegible] drivers the patrol would be invaluable, to say nothing of the great assistance it would be to municipal police in reporting suspicious characters. The employment of such a force would also make possible the enforcement of regulations that would do away with the dazzling rays and deadly glares. Mr. Hurtubis says [illegible] traffic squads in [illegible] should be increased and the scope [illegible] extended.

Lawrence G. Brooks, of the Highway Safety League, takes about the same view of the situation. He indorses all that Mr. Hurtubis says. He says the State of New Jersey examines all automobile applicants and there is no reason why this State should not do the same thing, charge a fair fee for doing it and devote the income for highway safety patrol purposes.

Drunken Motorists Sentenced to Jail

Lowell, May 14.—Motorists are warned to look [illegible] with [illegible] while in these parts.

Omar Savignack and Wladyslaw Taraszkewicz were sentenced to serve one and three months, respectively, in the House of Correction by Judge Thomas J. Enright on the charge of operating an automobile while embarrassed by an excessive consumption of spirituous stimulants.

He left his wife and four children.

"My Crawford Is Really Two Ranges in One"

"AND I can use them together or separately, just as I wish. See what a nice gas stove I have at the end of the coal range, where it is most convenient! Five gas burners on the top, a great roomy oven, with a rack, and a folding broiler below the oven!

"But much as I like the gas stove I simply couldn't get along without the coal range. Right now, you see, I've got my cold pack canner on the coal stove, while my jelly is boiling on the gas and the sugar is warming in the oven. And there's bread baking in the coal oven, too. That helps me save fuel—and I get a lot more done in a day.

"THERE'S another splendid thing about my coal range—the Crawford Single Damper. I set the knob at 'Bake,' 'Check,' or 'Kindle,'—which are plainly marked on the stove top—and I can always be sure my oven will be just the right temperature. This damper also regulates the heat under the top griddles.

"And here, too, is another reason why I'm so fond of my Crawford. Tucked in behind those doors in the stove base is a pair of interchangeable hods. As soon as I use up the coal in the one on the right, I will take out the one on the left which has been catching the ashes from the chute, and move the other over into its place. Then I can carry the one with ashes down cellar, empty it and bring it back full of coal—all in one trip.

"IT'S the neatest, cleanest way of taking care of the ashes, and so much easier to handle than the old-fashioned ash-pan. And I like to be able to keep my coal hod out of sight—it makes the kitchen so much tidier.

"These twin hods are an exclusive feature of the Crawford Range—and so is the Single Damper. Every day I discover new Crawford advantages. One of them is its economy—I figure that the fuel it saves will just about pay for my range."

Those who prefer a dentifrice in powder form to any other can use nothing better. While its mission is to clean the teeth thoroughly, it possesses a very pungent, aromatic, delightful flavor, leaving a clean, cool taste in the mouth. C. A. C. STAGING 44-ROUND SHOW

Club's Share of Tonight's Receipts to Be Given to Mother of Johnny Murray

By JACK CONWAY.

Fourty-four rounds of boxing are booked for the Commercial A. C.'s show tonight. The club's proceeds tonight will go to swell the fund being raised for the widowed mother of Johnny Murray of Roxbury. It is the wish of the directors of the Commercial Club that a capacity crowd be on hand as they desire Mrs. Murray to get as big a sum of money as possible.

The feature ten round bout will bring together Young Gould of Brockton and Greek Alger who hails from the South End. Gould is one of the big attractions at local clubs. Alger has a draw to his credit with Gould and feels confident he can beat the Brockton favorite.

Young Grace of Milwaukee and Hammering Howie, who calls Woonsocket home, will meet in another ten round affair.

Three eight-round bouts will complete the evening's entertainment. These are: Harry Silva of the West End vs. Frank Rapetto of the North End, Young Kansas vs. Young Rova, and Battling Hurley of the North End vs. Mike Melia of South Boston.

LETTERS AWARDED TO TECH TENNIS PLAYERS

Captain Herman Broockman and William A. Caldwell, Tech's doubles team in the New England intercollegiates early this week, where they earned their way into the final round, have been awarded the straight "T" for their performance. Tech has the athletic advisory committee's sanction for sending a team into the nationals at Philadelphia, June 28. William Barron, star of last year's team, may come out of his retirement and play for Tech at the nationals.

Tech meets Williams at Williamstown tomorrow. The team will be without the services of Caldwell, who was unable to make the trip. W. R. Scott is taking his place.

ATTRACTIVE PRELIM CARD AT TRIPLE A

The Armory A. A. has arranged an attractive preliminary card for the twelve round bout between Frankie Schoell of Buffalo and Mickey Donley, Newark lightweight, which will be staged at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night. Freddy Mallia of East Boston will oppose Tommy Marks of the North End in the semi-final of eight rounds. Young [illegible] of Quincy and [illegible] of Roxbury will box six frames. Young Kelly of South Boston and Patsy Malkern of Roxbury will also travel the six-round distance.

JIMMY WILDE KAYOS MURRAY IN 2D ROUND

Philadelphia, May 14.—Jimmy Wilde, the holder of the world's flyweight title, again showed that he was a real champion when he knocked out Battling Murray of this city in the windup of the National A. C. The bout was scheduled for eight rounds but Wilde put over the finishing wallop after two minutes and thirteen seconds of the second round had elapsed.

McGUIRE WILL FORCE REID TO STEP LIVELY

Pal Reid will have to be at his best next Monday night when he clashes with that hard hitting Quaker middleweight Frankie McGuire for twelve rounds at the Framingham A. C. of Framingham.

The semi-final of eight rounds will be between Chick McDonald, the international amateur featherweight champion, and Young Collins.

MATCH PLAY AT WOODLAND

More Than 100 Took Part in Qualifying Round—Purves Is Low Gross

FIRST DIVISION MATCHES.

Fred Wright vs. W. H. Stevens.
Larry Dowling vs. J. A. Gammons.
C. W. Brocker vs. Robert Lehane.
Larry Paton vs. C. M. Amory.
R. C. Van Arsdale vs. T. A. Ashley.
R. M. Purves vs. B. K. Stephenson.
G. Henderson vs. Eddie Lowery.
W. E. Smith vs. Jesse Guilford.

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

A number of good matches were scheduled today in the first and second rounds of the open golf tournament at the Woodland Golf Club. More than 100 players refused to allow the damp weather of Thursday to interfere with their game and played in the qualifying round.

Massachusetts golfers have about decided not to allow the rain to cheat them out of any more golf. Officials at Woodland said that a number who called on the telephone to ascertain if the tournament was to be played, were glad to hear that the rain would not prevent play, and requested starting times. The greens were slow and the fairways heavy and the same conditions prevailed for the match play today.

Scores Good Considering Weather Conditions

Considering the slow course the scores returned in this qualifying round were remarkable. It took 86 to get into the first sixteen, 91 to make the second and 98 the third. R. M. Purves of Woodland, one of the best medal players in the State, had the best gross card, a 74. Although Purves needed 41 going out, he came in with 34. His in card was 345, 342, 733, 34.

Fred Wright and Jesse Guilford were drawn in opposite sides in the first flight and at least one bet was made that they would work their way into the final round. In order to do this they will both have to let down a number of capable golfers. Wright met W. H. Stevens this morning and Guilford played W. E. Smith. Murray Purves played B. K. Stephenson, the president of the M. G. A.

President Stephenson was one of three golfers to break 80 in the qualifying round. He shot consistently good golf and had a 78. Guilford had 77.

CALZONE AND TILLO AT MARLBORO TONIGHT

Al Calzone and Frank Tillo, two of New England's kayo kings, will settle their ring differences when they clash in a twelve-round bout at Marlboro tonight.

Calzone is a Milford boy and has been one of the sensations of the boxing game during the past year. Tillo has also won most of his tussles inside of the limit. Calzone is one of the few boxers he has been unable to stop.

PARKER AND DOWNES IN BOUT AT LOWELL

Charley Parker, South End lightweight, is fit for his twelve-round bout with Cleveland Johnny Downes, which will be staged at Brockton tonight. Parker is now hitting harder than he has at any time in his career and feels confident he will stop Downes. The latter kayoed Charley Sheppard at the Commercial Club last week and is not worrying over his opponent's punch.

MADDEN HAS SHADE ON RITCHIE AT LYNN CLUB

Freddy Madden of East Boston won a close verdict over Victor Ritchie at the Casino A. C., Lynn. Hammering Howie of Woonsocket and Dummy Burns of Lynn boxed a ten-round draw. Bert Jones of Revere won from Johnny Brown of Newport, R. I., and Mike Williams of Chelsea knocked out Johnny Griffin of East Boston in the second round.

HONORS EVEN BETWEEN POUKUS AND PACHIA

Young Pachia of Malden, though outweighed by about fifty pounds by Judd Pockus of Burlington, held his opponent to a draw in twelve rounds at the Lyceum A. C. Paddy Murphy of Brookline won in eight rounds over Young Kenney of Cambridge.

Siegal-Adair Bout Off

The twelve-round bout between Nate Siegal of Revere and Barney Adair, New York welterweight, which was booked to be decided at Portsmouth, N. H., tonight, has been called off on account of an injury received by Adair.

Prophets and Profits

I DON'T believe a long-whiskered Prophet with a Ouija Board over his knees or Uncle Sam's Flying Squadron who are chasing Profiteers could figure the Profits from the Prices of Straw Hats that I've seen around town today, and I've been over to Wanamaker's, too.

I take off my hat to John Wanamaker. He startled the merchandise world. It didn't take him long to act when he saw the hand-writing on the wall. Swollen Profits are shrinking and High Prices are tumbling, and I think it's about time. I was beginning to feel lonesome.

But, of course, John Wanamaker doesn't want you and me to think that he's playing the part of Santa Claus. He isn't giving things away,—but he's giving the H. C. L. an awful wallop. He couldn't get any factory in this country today to duplicate my values and sell them at my price,—but he's squeezing all the joy out of the Speculator and the Profiteer,—and that's what I've been trying to do for the last two years.

You can't buy any better than the best, and I'm using the best Sennet braid that money can buy. I have every new shape and all the staple styles, in all proportions of crown and brim,—and they're all $3.45.

You can make your selection from more than a hundred different styles. Imported and Domestic. Bleached or natural color. Wide, Medium, Fine and Fancy weave Straws. Smooth or Saw-edge Brim. Wide and narrow bands,—and every straight-brim straw in the store is one price,—$3.45.

RED SOX AND INDIANS IN LAST BATTLE AT FENWAY PARK TODAY

PENNOCK TO HALT ENEMY

Coveleski Undefeated as Yet, Goes in Box for Cleveland—White Sox Tomorrow

Spring is improving in these parts. The baseball athletes get in a game about once every two days. The charley horses get plenty of rest, which is a good thing for them, but the gate receipts and the magnates don't enjoy vacations.

Both the Sox and the Indians were anxious to get in their ultimate game today. This series was to settle what team really should lead the American League down to the wire, but thus far it hasn't proved a thing but annoying.

Getting down to facts, however, all the pitching arms on both outfits have profited by the slackness of opportunity here, and Herbie Pennock and Stanley Covaleskie, respectively, had no reason for not producing their best when they hooked up. The Indian has a better record for the year—not having been defeated—but the Sox southpaw has been tossing some remarkably fine baseball.

The meeting of the pair should cut down free hitting, and let us have that real test of the teams that has been talked about so generally. Neither the Red Sox nor the Cleveland manager has been able to get a real closeup on the enemy as yet.

The champion White Sox, who made life merry for the Indians and everybody else out in the West, follow the Indians here, starting a four-game series on the morrow. Although the Kidgleasons have been treated roughly by Babe Ruth, they have a mighty good ball club, and the departure of T. Speaker, et al., will not mean that the soft times are approaching for the Sox.

That's one of the reasons they are eager to get an even break with the present enemy, and start things with the flag owners only half a game away from the turret.

Better Chance to Lift Cup, Says Lipton

By International News Service.

London, May 14.—"I think I have a better chance to win the cup than I ever had before," declared Sir Thomas Lipton when questioned regarding his challenger, the Shamrock IV., which will compete for the America's cup in July.

"The Shamrock IV. is different from any boat that has ever been built," continued Sir Thomas. "She has been built for the purpose of lifting the cup and I honestly believe that she will succeed.

"Just how the Shamrock IV. differs from any other yacht ever built can only be properly explained—and understood—by a practical yachtsman, and some of the things must, of course, be kept secret. It must suffice, therefore, to say that the Shamrock IV. is a new kind of boat and that she has a better chance of winning the cup than any of my previous craft.

"I expect to leave England during the last week in May or the first of June and arrive in New York within seven days. Many of my crew are in New York now and others will be there shortly."

Twenty-four Big Events on Chestnut Hill Open-Air Exhibit

With a constantly multiplying list of entrants in the twenty-four events on its program, the seventeenth annual Chestnut Hill Open-Air Horse Show, to be staged on the Chestnut Hill grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, promises to prove the most attractive exhibition of ponies and horses ever conducted by the organization. Included in the list of events will be the showing of five pony classes, seven saddle classes, five harness classes, two combination harness and saddle classes and one class of teams of three hunters.

The committee is made up as follows: Andrew Adie, Prescott Bigelow, Chester Howe, Francis W. Lee, Louis K. Liggett, Richard M. Saltonstall, Walter H. Seavey, Edwin S. Webster, A. Winsor Weld and George S. West.

BRAVES CLASH WITH CUBS

Scott and Vaughn Loom Up as Pitching Probabilities in First Chicago Game

Chicago, May 14—With Grover Cleveland Alexander used against the Dodgers in their ultimate clash with the Cubs, the Braves had only Hippo Vaughn standing between them and victory today.

They will probably get the mighty Alex later in the series, but that is not bothering the Bostonians much. They don't care who the pitchers are or how big reputations they have, but go after all impartially.

Stallings had three twirlers, Rudolph, Scott and McQuillan, warming up in the bull pen, with strong probability that the second named would draw the hurling assignment.

Oeschger Faltered, Then Failed

The first-placers (the Braves are still such as the Reds were blanked by the Giants) were thrown off their stride in the ultimate tilt in the Mound City, largely because Joseph Oeschger, hero of the longest game in big league baseball, first faltered and then failed.

Oeschger got by finely in the first inning, but in the second he developed a slight kink in his pitching arm which proved his undoing. Joe refused to retire, arguing that a little exercise was all that was needed to straighten his muscles out and before he was yanked by Boss Stallings, the Cardinals had safely stowed the game away.

Allowed Nine Hits in Seven Innings

Joseph pitched seven innings and was rapped for nine hits. He had a lead of two runs, rather he gave himself two runs as in the second inning he drove in Boeckel and Maranville with a long double. This advantage slipped away when the Cardinals scored one in the second and one in the third and then put over three in the fifth with two out.

There was enough hitting for the Braves to finish in front as they found Jess Haines for thirteen safe clouts but the hitting was not the follow through sort. A stingy safety here and there and after the second did not disturb the Cardinals' righthander.

The batting does not worry Stallings. He wants the pitching to remain at the top and he knows that he will have the pitching here against Vaughn, Hendrix, Martin and Alexander to get the odd game.

AMERICAN OLYMPIC HOCKEY STARS BACK

New York, May 14.—Six members of the American Olympic Hockey team which competed in the Olympic tournament at Antwerp have arrived from Southampton.

In the party were Captain J. W. McCormick, Larry McCormick, Raymond L. Bonney and Herbert Drury of Pittsburgh; Cyril W. Widenbonner of St. Paul., Minn., and Francis Synnot of Boston, Mass. The team lost the principal match of the tourney to the Canadians by the score of 2 to 0 after the Americans literally smothered the foreign teams against which they were pitted.

46 HITS FOR YANKEES IN LAST THREE GAMES

New York, May 14.—The Yankees have made forty-six hits in the last three games, thirty-four of these off the White Sox pitching. Also off the White Sox pitching there have been two two-baggers, two triples and five home runs. It is but elemental mathematics to find that thirty-four hits inclusive of the extra bases mentioned mean a total of fifty-five bases, which are a whole lot for two consecutive days.

Yale Crews in Triple Race at Princeton

New Haven, Ct., May 14.—Yale today sent a bigger crowd to Princeton to witness the annual races for the Childs Cup and the most generous odds ever offered on a cluster of Eli crews.

Heavy odds were offered on the varsity eight, and even terms were given on the freshman eight, which has been slow to develop, but which has seemed to find itself this week after Platt was installed at stroke.

He has made a difference of several lengths in a two-mile race, and now the freshies are confident of winning from their Cornell and Princeton class rivals.

PUGILIST'S WIFE ISSUES DEFI

Mrs. Wilson Writes Letter Challenging Carpentier to Bout With Her Husband

Mrs. Johnny Wilson, wife of the world's middleweight champion, regretted the fact that Mrs. Georges Carpentier didn't make the trip to Boston with her famous husband but remained in New York shopping instead. Mrs. Wilson had a little surprise all planned for Mrs. Carpentier, it was learned today. She wanted to take her to lunch at one of the fashionable Back Bay hotels and then ask the French boxer's wife if her husband believed he could defeat the Charlestown champion.

"You know I believe Johnny is the greatest boxer in the world," said Mrs. Wilson today. "Of course he only won the world's middleweight title when he defeated Mike O'Dowd, but I feel sure he can beat most of the heavyweights. Carpentier would be easy for him."

When Mrs. Wilson learned that Mrs. Carpentier had failed to come to Boston she wrote her a letter which was given to the French champion to present to his wife. The letter follows:

Charlestown, Mass.,

My dear Mrs. Carpentier:

Accept my best wishes for yourself. I was very sorry you were unable to come to Boston. I hope you will be able to visit our city before you return to France. I would dearly love to greet you personally.

"It is only natural that you should be enthusiastic over the wonderful boxing ability of your husband. Any man who has a record like that of your illustrious husband is certainly deserving of praise.

I think, though, that my husband would be able to score more points than your husband in a boxing match. It would be America against France in an international athletic event. I have enough confidence in my husband's ability as a boxer to feel sure he would successfully uphold the honor of America. With kind wishes to yourself.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) MRS. JOHNNY WILSON,

The big business of this week has reduced the fifty pieces of wool worsted bought from M. Axelrod & Sons, 79 Chauncy St., Boston. These goods were sold to me as "seconds," but in my own mind I am satisfied that they were "firsts," that the mill reduced the price on them in order to dispose of excess merchandise. These are all dark, staple colorings, and I personally guarantee them all-wool worsteds.

THE YOUNG DIANA

An Experiment of the Future

Story of Extraordinary Mystery, in Which the Heroine Holds Key to Youth and Beauty

By Marie Corelli

THE longest waiting must have an end, but never to his thought did a longer period of time stretch itself out between the evening of the twentieth of June and that of the twenty-fourth, Midsummer day.

The weather [illegible] intensely warm [illegible] cloud crossed the [illegible] the daylight, and at evening the young moon, slightly broadening from a slender sickle to the curve of a coracle boat floating whitely in the deep ether, shed fairy silver over the lake and the Alpine snows above it. During these days many people of note and scientific distinction called at the Chateau Fragonard—Feodor Dimitrius was a personage to be reckoned with in many departments of knowledge, and his exquisite gardens afforded [illegible]ness and shade to those wanderers from various lands who were touring Switzerland in search of health and change of scene. Near neighbors and acquaintances also came and went but such is the generally vague attitude of mind assumed by ordinary folk to other than themselves, that scarcely any among the few who had met Diana and accepted her as a chance visitor to Madame Dimitrius, now remembered her, except the Baron and Baroness de Rousillon, who still kept up a slight show of interest as to her whereabouts, though their questions were lightly evaded and never fully answered. Professor Chauvet, irritated and unhappy at receiving no news whatever of the woman for whom he had conceived a singular but sincere affection, had taken it into his head to go suddenly to Paris, to see after his house and garden there, which had long been unoccupied, a fancy possessed him that if, or when, Diana did write to him, he would answer her from Paris, so that they might meet there or in London, without the surveillance or comment of Dimitrius. Meanwhile Dimitrius himself, a figure of impenetrable reserve and cold courtesy, let his visitors come and go as they listed, apparently living the life of a scientist absorbed in studies too profound to allow himself to be troubled or distracted by the opinions of the outer world.

Day Came at Last

Midsummer Day, the Feast of St. John, and a day of poetic and superstitious observance, came at last and drifted along in a stream of gold and azure radiance, the sun sinking round as a rose in a sky without a cloud. To the last moment of its setting Dimitrius waited, watch in hand. All day long he had wandered aimlessly in the garden among his flowers, talking now and then to his gardeners, and stepping at every point where he could see the crystal dome of his laboratory shine clear like the uplifted minaret of some palace of the East, and it was with the greatest difficulty that he compelled himself to walk with a slow and indifferent mien when the moment arrived for him to return to the Chateau. His heart galloped like a runaway racehorse, while he forced his feet into a sauntering and languid pace as though he were more than oppressed by the heat of the day—and he stopped for a moment to speak to his mother, whose reclining chair was in the loggia where she could enjoy the view of the gardens and the fountains in full play.

Sends Her Love

Madame Dimitrius, busy with some delicate lacework, looked up at him inquiringly.

"Are you seeing Diana this evening?" she asked.

He nodded assent.

"Give her my love and tell her how glad I am that her days of solitude are over, and that I shall come to her tomorrow as soon as you will allow [illegible]."

He [illegible] a tender [illegible] her bandeaux [illegible]

After a [illegible] he kissed her on the brow. "It is perhaps wrong that we should wish to be always young."

He passed on then, and, entering his library, rang a bell. Vasho appeared.

"Vasho, the hour has come!" he said, whereat Vasho, the dumb, uttered an inarticulate animal sound of terror. "Either I have succeeded, or I have failed. Let us go and see!"

He Paused a Moment

He paused for a moment, his eyes resting on the mysterious steel instrument which, always working in its appointed place on its block of crystal, struck off its tiny sparks of fire with unceasing regularity.

"You gave me the first clue!" he said, addressing it. "You were a fluke—a chance—a stray hint from the unseen. And you will go on for ever if nothing disturbs your balance—if nothing shakes your exact mathematical poise. So will the Universe similarly go on for ever, if [illegible] undisturbed. All a matter of calculation, equality of distribution and exact poise—designed by faultless Intelligence! An Intelligence which we are prone to deny [illegible] we dare to doubt! Man perplexes himself with [illegible] forms of [illegible] which he calls [illegible] truly only [illegible] possible for [illegible] world, and that is the intelligent, reasoning, devout worship of the true God as made manifest in His works. These works none but the few will study, preferring to delude themselves with the fantastic spectres of their own imaginations. Yet, when we have learned what in time we must know—the words of the Evangelist may be fulfilled. 'I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first earth and the first heaven were passed away. . . . And there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain.' So we may have a joyous world, where youth and life are eternal, and where youth and life are eternal, and where never a heart-throb of passion or grief breaks the halcyon calm! Shall we care for it, I wonder? Will it not prove monotonous? And when all is smooth sailing, shall we not long for a storm?"

In the Laboratory

A quick sigh escaped him,—then remembering Vasho's presence, he shook off his temporary abstraction.

'Come, Vasho!' he said, "I must go and find this marvel of my science—living or dead! And don't look so [illegible]—one would think you were [illegible]. Whatever happens, you are safe."

Vasho made expressive signs of apologetic humility and appeal, to which Dimitrius gave no response save an indulgent smile.

"Come!" he repeated. They left the library, Dimitrius leading the way, and walked through the long corridor [illegible] laboratory. Gleams of gold and silver shone from the mysterious substance of which it was composed, and curious iridescent rays flashed suddenly across their eyes as if part of it had become transparent. "The sun's flames have had power here," remarked Dimitrius. "Almost, they have pierced the metal!"

Answering to pressure [illegible] usual manner, the portal opened and closed behind them as they entered. For a moment it was impossible to see anything owing to the overwhelming brilliancy of the light which filled every part of the domed space—a light streaked here and there with gold and deep rose-[illegible]. [illegible] Wheel was revolving slowly—and beneath its [illegible] the [illegible] white stretcher [illegible] dark water [illegible] been left four days [illegible] tioned victim had not stirred. For two or three minutes Dimitrius stood looking eagerly [illegible] through the waves of light that played upon his sense of [illegible] almost as drowningly as the waves of the sea might have played upon [illegible] power of breathing. Vasho [illegible] uncontrollable [illegible] fallen on his knees [illegible] raised him from his abject attitude.

"Get up, Vasho! Don't play the fool!" he said sternly. "What ails you? Are you a [illegible]? Look before you, man!—there is no change in the outline of that figure—it is merely in a condition of suspended animation. If she were dead—understand me!—she would not be there at all! The stretcher would be empty! Come—I want your help with these pulleys."

Vasho, striving to steady [illegible]

They worked together, and gradually, with a smooth, almost noiseless movement, the canopied couch with its motionless occupant was swung away from the Wheel across the water and laid at their feet. The canopy itself sparkled all over as with millions of small diamonds—and as they raised and turned it back, curled in the [illegible] thing. A still brighter luminance [illegible] end of the [illegible] and swathed figure [illegible] expression of [illegible] Dimitrius [illegible] beside it and began to unfasten the close wrappings [illegible] from [illegible] downwards, [illegible] against him.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 10c and 25c.

"What's In a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1920, The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

IDA

CURIOUSLY enough, Ida and Ada are practically synonomous, according to etymologists. Certainly the names were used interchangeably. In early times Ada was thought to be an entirely separate entity and was believed to be derived from Adah, meaning ornament, and the name Adah was given to the wife of Lamech in the Old Testament. But later etymological authorities believe that Ada is merely a Latinized form of Ead, meaning happy or rich, and the same as the German Ida.

Copyright by Harris & Ewing

Ida originates from Frau Uote, mother of Friemhild, who interpreted her dream and predicted the death of her bridegroom, Ortwin of Metz. A number of feminine names came from Uote or Uta, and finally the name Adur was evolved. Audur was a viking daughter of one of the first Icelandic settlers. In England, under Norman rule, there appeared Auda and Alda, the latter the wife of Orlando the Paladin. Another Alda was a queen of Italy in 926 and still another famous bearer of the name was a daughter of the house of Este in 1393. High German called the name Oda, but Low German made it Ead, and from this latter Ide and Idette were evolved, both of which became enormously popular.

Ida was the name given to the granddaughter of King Stephen, who became the Countess of Boulogne. Both Ida and Ada, the simplest terms possible of any feminine name have been the basis of a number of other more involved derivatives. Some seem hardly recognizable, as in the case of Othilie, a name still very popular in Teutonic countries. The original Othilie was an Alsatian virgin who was born blind but obtained her sight at baptism.

Ida's gem is the turquoise, which promises her protection from accident or sudden death. Like malachite, it is said to break as a warning of approaching danger. To wear it insures good fortune, and nothing is so conducive to good luck as to see the new moon reflected in its depths. Tuesday is Ida's lucky day and seven her lucky number.

CHAPTER X.

BARBARA talked little during dinner, and ate less. Her uncle, furtively watching her, supposed that her silence and lack of appetite were induced by the excitement of John Brandon's presence.

Strange, he reflected, that until now he had not observed the effect that Brandon had upon the child! Yet he had never before had his eyes opened to the fact that she cared for John. How blind he had been!

For some reason that he could not explain to himself Arthur Paige's heart ached for his niece. She was so young, so unversed in the ways of the world! He was thankful that Brandon was a good man above reproach in all his habits. The only thing against him was his age.

Dinner was over, the quartet went out upon the veranda. The men lighted their cigars and the two women sat by listening to their talk on business and politics. At last Barbara arose.

"If you will excuse me for a few minutes," she said, "I will go upstairs for a little rest. I"—with an apologetic smile—"was out rather late last night."

"I know you were," Miss Cynthia observed, "much later than I like, my dear. But, never mind. We will let it pass this time."

She followed her niece into the house.

"Are you going upstairs, too?" Barbara questioned.

"No"—Miss Cynthia feigned to stifle a yawn—"I am just going to lie down on the couch in the back hall and close my eyes for a few minutes. The men's talk has made me sleepy, too."

Barbara Paige paused for an instant. A change came over her face.

Her companion affected not to see it.

"Run and get your forty winks, child. For we must be ready at 3:30, or as soon after that as Robert Elliot goes. I hope he will have too much tact to stay long."

An Evident Plot

"If she guessed that I wanted to telephone to Bob she could not have stopped me more effectually," Barbara muttered indignantly when she had shut herself into her own room. "I hoped I could catch him at the hotel and ask him to come up earlier so that we could have a few minutes together before that hateful drive. And now Auntie is going to take a nap right by the telephone in the back hall! It is too bad!" Tears of chagrin sprang to her eyes, but she winked them away.

"I suppose I am wicked to get so angry with her. She means to do the best in the world by me, and she and Uncle Arthur are so good to me, and I am, after all, not their own.

"Oh," sinking down upon a chair, "I wish my father had left me a lot of money so that I was not dependent—so that I might do as I pleased!"

Then, again, she chided herself.

"I am an ungrateful beast!" she exclaimed. "For—haven't I Bob? and won't I be entirely his soon—as soon as he can afford to marry? Of course I shall be dependent upon him—but that's different."

She was too nervous to sit still. Going to the mirror, she took down her hair and did it up again. A sense of depression had replaced the happy mood of the morning. She supposed that it was because Robert was leaving Summerfield this afternoon.

"But I shall see him before he goes," she reminded herself. "I will get ready for the drive now so that I may be with him until the last moment."

All Arranged

In the front door the girl stopped abruptly. John Brandon and her aunt were conversing in low tones. Her uncle was not here.

"Ah—here's our little girl now!" the woman said with an alacrity that somehow aroused Barbara's suspicions. "I was just telling Mr. Brandon, my dear, that you would be glad to sit on the front seat by him."

"Ah, here is Robert now!" the spinster exclaimed. "Good afternoon!" stepping briskly forward to greet the caller. "I was afraid we would have to start upon our ride without the pleasure of bidding you good-bye. But you came just in time."

The young man stopped abruptly on the top step. "Oh, you are going out now?" he asked blankly. "I did not know."

"Not just yet." Miss Cynthia glanced at her watch. "Mr. Brandon has telephoned to the garage for his car. It cannot get here under five or ten minutes. Shall we wait in the living room—or all sit out here?"

"Why"—Barbara spoke hurriedly—"why not let us—Bob and me—go inside?"

"Certainly," her aunt agreed, "we will all go in. I was just noticing that the glare on this side of the house is a bit trying. Come on into the drawing room—all of you, won't you? Arthur"—raising her voice as she passed the foot of the stairs—"Robert Elliot is here to say good-bye! Come down as soon as you can—for he cannot stay long. He has a train to catch, you know."

The Widow's Lorgnette

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"THE most delightful and fascinating thing about marriage," sighed the Widow ecstatically, as she turned from her French pastry and chocolate to gaze out of the club window over the green golf links, "is that there is always something new or clever or cynical or interesting to say about it."

"There is always something the matter with it," admitted the Bachelor, continuing to attack his plate with the vigor of a healthy golf appetite. "It's like the Constitution, fundamentally all right, but in need of constant amendments to meet new and modern conditions."

"Yes," returned the Widow with a wry little smile, "and most of the amendments don't really 'amend' it, and very few of the improvements actually 'improve' it. I wonder what our imperialistic old grandfathers would think of modern 'marriage' in the tiny two-by-four studio-apartment, with hubby drying the dishes while wife washes them, and a curly dog constituting the whole 'nursery department,' and an image of Buddha occupying the place of the family Bible."

"He wouldn't recognize it," grinned the Bachelor, appreciatively. "He would think it 'immoral'—sacrilegious—a bad joke!"

"Oh, well," she protested, "Grandfather didn't know anything about the high cost of living. He only wore overalls because he wanted to! But for some of us it must be such a marriage or none at all and ANY marriage is better than none at all!"

"What!" The bachelor dropped his fork.

"Oh, yes, it IS!" insisted the Widow. "There are lot of compensations about the modern marriage. It keeps husband and wife from getting too close together and from living 'scrambled lives,' at any rate! At least, they can get away from each other occasionally, and thus preserve their proper perspective on one another. At least, they escape the hideous old Victorian fashions of family breakfasts, community toothbrush holders, and the morning reveille."

"But," protested the Bachelor, "I thought people married in ORDER to get close to one another—to SHARE - -"

"Yes," broke in the Widow, "in order to share their hopes and ambitions, and joys and sorrows and dreams and ideals! And then they end by sharing nothing but the towels, brushes, clothes closet and medicine cabinet—and fighting over those!"

"Oh, well," declared the Bachelor, desperately, "living too far apart is so unsociable. It's like looking at one another through the wrong end of an opera glass!"

"And living too close together," retorted the Widow, "is like looking at one another through a microscope—or like getting too close to a picture, so that it looks like nothing but a smudge."

"But that didn't bother Grandfather," persisted the Bachelor. "In his day, divorce was almost as unknown as washing machines and fireless cookers. When two people married, they were one——"

"And Grandfather was that ONE!" interrupted the Widow. "No wonder he was utterly satisfied. All that Grandmother had left of her individuality was her toothbrush and her napkin ring!"

"And all that a modern husband has left of 'home,'" groaned the Bachelor, "is a place to keep his razor and his dress clothes! If you and I were married tomorrow, I probably shouldn't see you any oftener than I do now——"

"Oh, yes, you should!" smiled the Widow, sweetly. "I'd make it awfully 'homelike' for you."

"Would you?" murmured the Bachelor, hopefully.

The Widow nodded.

"I'd let you dry the dishes," she announced, magnanimously, "and wash the dogs, and take them for their airing, and get your own coffee in the morning, and—and make yourself right 'at home'!"

"That," declared the Bachelor with mock gratitude, "would be almost as thrilling as living in a bachelor flat!"

"At least," sighed the Widow, contentedly, "our lives wouldn't get SCRAMBLED! And when we did meet, it would be with a real thrill—like breaking the Eighteenth Amendment."

TO AMUSE THE CHILDREN

Mrs. Howard, my neighbor, often drops in to discuss household matters over a cup of tea. The other day she told me her fudge difficulties were solved.

"Your fudge difficulties?" I asked her.

"Yes," she explained. "You see, almost every day, my little girl, asks to make fudge. Marjorie is just learning to cook and I like to encourage her. But my butter bills were mounting tremendously, and I was beginning to think that fudge was just a little too expensive and then—you told me about Spredit. It is so, comparatively inexpensive. And you should taste the fudge. We like fudge better since we began to make it with Spredit.

FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY

My two husky little sons, age eight and ten, came into the sitting room the other afternoon, when I was entertaining guests. They were so ruddy and bright with health and beauty. My mother's eye rested proudly upon them. I was not ashamed to introduce them even to new Mrs. Allen, who had just moved into our neighborhood.

"So healthy and so beautiful," said she, echoing my thought, "how do you do it, Mrs. Neighbor?"

"They are Hood's Milk babies," said I. She hesitated a moment. "I'm going to get Hood's Milk for mine," she decided. It's several months now and you should see her Hood's Milk youngsters.

GINGER PUFFS

Ginger Puffs are such a nice luncheon accessory, served either for a sweet bread or as cake, that I think we all should know how to make them. Slade's Ginger is the finishing touch to my Ginger Puffs. Here is the recipe, as given in the Slade's Cooking School Book: Beat one egg, add ½ cup sugar, ½ cup molasses, 4 tablespoonfuls butter and ½ cup water. Add 2 cups flour, mixed and sifted with one teaspoon each of Slade's Cinnamon, Ginger and Soda. To this add ½ teaspoon salt. Combine mixtures and bake in small buttered pans. You should just give your family these nice Slade's Ginger Puffs once. They are delightful. Always be sure to bring Slade's Spice home from market.

CLAM CHOWDER

"Please give me some more of that good clam chowder."

That is what my youngsters tell me when I serve them Gossom's Clam Chowder. And I marvel at the skill that made Gossom's Soups. It seems a miracle that all the flavor of the clam and the delicate nourishment could be got into Gossom's Powdered Soups.

TOAST AND UNCLE JOHN'S SYRUP

Now waffles and syrup, for tea—it's the usual story. And too complicated for the youngsters. So Jane and I tried to get our youngsters to like toast, at tea. We didn't succeed so well until we added Uncle John's Syrup. We cut the toast in long thin strips. Into little glass bowls we poured Uncle John's Syrup. Now our youngsters ask for their syrup and their toast, and we are not troubled any more by them teasing for waffles. Uncle John's Syrup has filled in the breach—and Jane and I are grateful.

For we know by experience that this syrup is pure and wholesome for children.

THE CHURCH SOCIAL AND FISH CAKES

When my mother-in-law became converted to Gorton's Ready To Fry Fish Cakes, she became converted with sincerity. That is why she gave the church people such a surprise. The minister's wife had put her on the supper committee, and my mother-in-law gave them beans and nice Gorton Ready To Fry Cod Fish Cakes.

"These cakes," said the minister's wife, "are even better than the ones you made last time. You're an expert, Mrs. Stone."

"Gorton's an expert," my mother-in-law confessed honestly. "At last I have found fish cakes better than my own. That's why I served Gorton's Ready To Fry."

HOME DISTINCTION

As some of the club ladies were saying the other day, at a club tea, when we have our little club parties, and everyone gives something, we have all noticed that there is very little good cake given, but much bread. We meant by that that the cake too many women make is bready. They put too much flour in it, perhaps; perhaps don't put in enough shortening. At any rate a bready cake is dismal. That is why I always give a loaf or two of Drake's Cake to the club tea parties. For Drake's Cake never varies, and it always possesses the distinction of the best cake made at home. Drake's Cake is always in my cake box.

TO RENOVATE

I never believe in throwing out one teaspoon of my good White-house Coffee, and the other day I had two cups and was wondering if I would use it in gelatine. "Sponge that black satin with the coffee," my mother suggested. "It will give a lustre like new." I did. You should see my new dress. You should try this, and see for yourself.

AS COMPARED WITH HOME-MADE

I have often heard women say that they would never buy a loaf of bread. Now I have always wished to say to these ladies that it all depended upon the bread. Some home made bread I do not consider fit to eat—it is made under conditions too irregular with heating of oven and mixing, hit or miss. But Hathaway's Bread, the logical substitute for home-made bread, is always up to the standard of the very best bread baked at home. It stands to reason that Hathaway's must be an excellent bread. It has stood the test of forty years' experience is behind it. It is just plain common sense to use Hathaway's Bread.

THE SECRET

"How do you make this wonderful jellied tomato?" my neighbor, Mrs. Howard, asked me that afternoon tea time, when I first served the Plymouth Rock Jellied Tomato Bouillon.

"Why, it's simple enough," I told her. This is the recipe. One envelope Plymouth Rock plain gelatine; cup beef broth (cold), 2 cups beef broth (hot); 1 cup tomato puree; 2 tablespoonfuls chili sauce, teaspoonful salt; ½ teaspoonful paprika.

"Soften the gelatine in the cold broth and dissolve in the hot broth; add the puree, chili sauce, salt and pepper; mix and turn into a pan; mould and serve in bouillon cups, in place of hot soup."

Your grocer keeps Plymouth Rock.

A SAUCY PEANUT SANDWICH

I like piquancy in my food. Particularly if I have to make sandwiches, for tea or luncheon or picnic, I like them to have a dash of smartness about them. And, as every housekeeper knows, often the most alluring sandwiches may be made of such simple ingredients. There's my favorite Forster's Peanut Butter sandwich. I take my Forster's Peanut Butter, and cream it in a little bowl; I add a dash of curry powder; a teaspoon of lemon, and a spoonful of grated cheese. This makes the most mysterious sandwich you ever ate. And delicious, too. I spread very thin slices of white bread with the mixture, and serve them for tea.

The Guarantee Protects You

OILS LEADERS IN THE UPSWING

Steels Are Strong and Motors Irregular During a Quiet Morning

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon. The upward movement, which began at the opening, continued all the forenoon. But gains were not large and the market was quiet. First hour transactions totalled less than 160,000 shares.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. Foreign exchange rates ruled slightly lower. Nothing new developed during the morning either in stocks or finance. Oils led the upswing and steels were strong also. Motors were irregular.

BETTER TONE AT OPENING.

The market had a better tone at the opening, advances outnumbering declines two to one and ranging from fractions to more than a point. The movement continued during the first hour and within thirty minutes Crucible, which had improved the most, was up several points. Reading was a strong rail and Baldwin led equipments. Steels and oils showed the most strength as groups. Motors were above Thursday's final figures, General Motors and Studebaker moving forward the farthest. The betterment of the market was due more to covering of shorts than to anything else. No buying of consequence was reported by out of town speculators or investors. The market continued to be of a decidedly professional character. Although prices for stocks were higher this morning, talk around financial districts continued to be bearish. There is hope that something beneficial will be decided upon at the coming Federal Reserve conference of Federal Reserve bankers. It will be held in Washington next week. It would occasion no surprise if the Federal Reserve rate on commercial rediscounts be increased soon from 6 per cent. to 6½ per cent.

CREDIT SITUATION IS SERIOUS.

The credit situation is serious and is reflected in reports in circulation regarding restrictions put in force by banks. The Boston News Bureau says this morning concerning the money situation:

"Notice from department stores of cuts in merchandise prices should be very welcome to bankers and investors. The trouble at the present day is that labor has the money of the country in its pocket. Uncle Sam can not attract it in war saving stamps or government bonds at 10 per cent. depreciation. Motor car makers can not deliver the goods, and the only people who can get the money from labor's pocketbook are the theatre managers and the department stores.

"There is a credit famine over the country at the present time. Bankers have told retail merchants to put their goods on the counter, sell them and carry light stocks hereafter; there was not credit enough in the country to permit stocking up of goods. The policy for the future must be quick sales and no accumulation. If the railroads cannot move the goods fast enough to liquidate loans, the merchants must try their hand.

"A department store recently advertising a 20 per cent. cut in merchandise prices in New York and Philadelphia cleared its counters at the rate of a million dollars a day for the first week."

April Output by Porphyries

Copper production in April by so-called porphyry companies is given as Utah Copper, 9,313,227 pounds; Chino, 3,542,471; Ray Consolidated, 4,500,000, and Nevada Consolidated, 4,140,000.

BOSTON TREND IS MIXED

Price Irregularity Prevails on the Local Exchange; Better Tone on Curb

Price irregularity prevailed on the Boston exchange at the opening and all through the morning. Packing issues showed improvement and coppers were weak. North Butte was the most active mining stock. American Woolen preferred was in evidence and receded a point. Boston & Maine was the most prominent rail and advanced. Gray & Davis was stronger than for several days. There was no omvement in sugar shares during the forenoon. Trading was of moderate volume.

Issues to sell ex-dividend were Maine Central preferred, Massachusetts Gas preferred, New River preferred, United Drug second preferred, St. Mary's Land and American Steel Foundries. Davis Daly was unchanged. A Butte dispatch says that a fine body of bornite ore, five feet in width and running high in copper, has been opened on the 2,500-foot level of this mine.

Among issues to advance a point or more were Gray & Davis and Ahmeek, while fractional gains were shown by American Telephone, Boston & Maine, Ventura, Sims Magneto, Swift & Co., Swift International and Mexican Investment.

Old Dominion, St. Mary's Land and New River preferred were off from one to more than two points, while fractional losses were sustained by Copper Range, North Butte, Libby, National Leather, Eastern Manufacturing and Waldorf.

...GOOD TONE ON CURB.

The Curb Market had a good tone at the start, reflecting the advance on other exchanges. Mutual trust was the most active issue in early trading and was weak. It opened at 76 cents, and sold down to 55 cents before rallying to 70 cents.

Arizona Silver had a strong opening at 85 cents and later at 90 cents. It then reacted to 78 cents, off five cents from Thursday's closing.

At the end of an hour Black Hawk was up five cents at 77 cents. Homa one cent at 13 cents and Eureka 11¼ cents at 1 1-16. Losses included Federal Oil ⅛ at 2⅞ and Manhattan one cent at 70 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES

Henry Hornblower of Hornblower & Weeks has returned to Boston after being three months at Pinehurst, N. C.

The Pittman act authorizes the government to make purchases at a price not exceeding $1 an ounce to replace dollars melted and sold. Silver was quoted in New York yesterday at $1 an ounce. On April 28 the Treasury Department held silver bullion amounting to $18,049,010.

WHEAT TRADING WILL BE RESUMED SOON

On June 1 trading in wheat will be resumed after a long suspension due to war exigencies, and there is fear on the part of grain exchange operators that foreign governments will attempt a pool to obtain wheat below its real value. An embargo against excessive exports has been suggested, but this was opposed by Wheat Director Barnes at a meeting in Chicago. It is reported from London that the Argentine government is going to take steps to restrict wheat exports. A heavy export duty may be the means employed.

The latest crop reports in this country are more favorable. It is said that several days of dry weather and sunshine in the West have caused rapid growth of wheat, oats and other grains.

BOSTON BANK DEPOSITS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

During the first four months of this year deposits in Boston savings banks increased $11,229,304, and on May 1 totalled $355,034,304. The increase in a year amounted to $70,000,000. This shows that all the people who are earning higher wages are not spending their entire income because of high living costs or extravagance.

The six banks with the largest total of deposits on April 30 last and the amounts they hold are: Boston Five-Cent, $59,112,000; Provident Institute, $58,731,000; Suffolk, $39,796,000; Home, $31,208,000; Charlestown Five-Cent, $25,784,000, and Franklin, $20,549,000.

New York Sub-Treasury Gain

New York, May 14.—The sub-treasury gained $311,000 from the banks on Thursday, making a net cash gain since Friday of $2,855,000.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Let Us Give Public Service the Credit That Is Due

The Massachusetts Supervisor of Administration is reported to have said that no self-respecting man will stay in public service more than ten years, after which, if he is any good, he can do better elsewhere.

This statement, if correct, is capable of two interpretations. It may mean that Mr. White considers the wages of a public servant too low or that he considers the public service itself too low. If he considers the wages of public service too low we should like to see him urging an increase of the wages in public service.

We suspect that Mr. White really means, in his heart of hearts, that the public service itself is not worth while. There are too many men of this kind in America.

Private operators of public functions, like the railroads, telegraph companies, telephone companies, the gas and electric light companies, and the street railways, have always found it to their advantage to create a contempt in the public mind for their own public service. These private corporations, on the one hand, corrupt the public service with their corruption funds and create and maintain the political machines and bosses and thus lower the quality of the public service; while, on the other hand, they attempt, by absurdly high salaries, to make the public believe that the executive ability in these private corporations is infinitely greater than the executive ability in the public service.

There is no truth in the assumption; it is mere propaganda. The public service has as much brains as any private corporation. There is less nepotism, less general favoritism, less pull in the determining of position, and less graft in the public service than in the private corporations. Every intelligent man who has read more deeply than the mere superficial newspaper reports knows that this is true.

When the railroads under private management, during the war, broke down and, by their complete failure, came near losing the war, the National Government had to take control. Generations of persistent lying propaganda by big business and the public service corporations, that our government is incapable of being anything more than a policeman and a tariff collector for the "interests," made us hesitate to take control of the railroads long after we should have done so. Even then we would not have taken control of the roads if it had not been for the Prime Ministers of Great Britain, France and Italy, who called attention to the shortage of supplies brought by the railroads to the ships for the soldiers in France and Italy.

In six weeks of government operation the railroads not only began to perform their duties, but had made up the great arrears of grain which had accumulated through the demoralization of the roads under private operation.

There was no private enterprise ever able to approach the achievement of the National Government in the building of the Panama Canal. With the attacks which we all make on the Post-office Department there is no private enterprise that has ever handled so huge a business so well and so cheaply. Consider this.

What the American people need is to appreciate the possibilities of their government. If a democratic is a sound form of government then that government is capable of the highest achievement. Let us hold its possibilities high and then make the public service level up to that high standard. Alove all things remember that money is not the only incentive to the great services which have been rendered to mankind. Services without which we would still be in a state of barbarism were rendered to humanity without thought of money reward and will continue to be so rendered. Services that would not be rendered but for money are the services of smaller minds and are lesser services.

When the public service corporations, such as railroads, gas and electric light, street railways, telephones, which today corrupt, demoralize and demean our government and at the same time try to give their own private service false glory by the absurd salaries they give their figureheads, and make our public officials look like "pikers" in the minds of those men who can only estimate the ability and service of a man by the amount of money he receives, are taken for good by the public and operated by the public, we shall begin to see the end of this flouting of the public servants and by that very token we shall see the beginning of a very great uplifting of the character of our public servants. Does anybody believe that William Dean Howells wrote better because he received money for it?

Even today, if Mr. White means that the public service is not worth while he is greatly slandering it. There are men in the public service whom money could not buy because they love the service and love the work connected with it.

Hope Activity in the Dr. Dean Case Will Lead to Slayer

The new activity of the Department of Justice concerning the Dean murder case, which the American has so long called to the attention of the public authorities as a continuing miscarriage of justice, may be the beginning of a search which will reveal the murderer or murderers of Dr. Dean, so long unwhipped of justice. Let us hope that this new departure means business.

Dr. Dean was murdered under very dramatic and brutal circumstances. The guilty party or parties did not escape without leaving some trace of their work; the case was not without some circumstantial evidence. But the local public authorities, very much to the distress of local public opinion, showed, at least, great sloth and caution.

There is nothing more dangerous to the community than to let a widely known murder go undetected and unpunished. One of the real objections to capital punishment is the indisposition of men to bring about the conviction of anyone who must suffer death as a consequence. Emerson once said that if you make a law too severe juries will not convict. But this ought not to apply to public prosecutors, and we hope it will not apply in this case.

Hearst Will Support Best Man of Either Party; Asks Fair Trial for Prohibition

New York, May 14.—James Martin Miller, well-known Washington correspondent and political writer, sent the following interview with William Randolph Hearst to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and a number of other leading newspapers today:

By JAMES MARTIN MILLER.

I spent an hour today at the residence of William Randolph Hearst on Riverside Drive, during which visit he gave me the following interview upon some of the burning questions of the day. Mr. Hearst was outspoken and frank and had no evasions or reservations upon any question I asked him.

I said: "Mr. Hearst, there is a persistent rumor that you are planning to kidnap both wings of the Republican party, first the progressive wing through Senator Hiram Johnson, and then you will swallow the old guard organization of the party, bag and breeches; that you have already enveloped both elements of the Republican party with your journalistic pincers from coast to coast. In talking with certain leaders of the old guard I find there is consternation in their ranks since Senator Johnson, backed by your newspapers, has swept the country and is now one of the leading Republican candidates.

"What about the serious charge, Mr. Hearst, that you, a Democrat, are about to commit grand larceny in stealing the Republican party, and what are you going to do with these stolen goods when you are found in possession of them as I am told you surely will be, if Senator Johnson is nominated?"

"I am not in politics and am not regarding the present Presidential situation from a political viewpoint," Mr. Hearst answered. "I am running a newspaper and I am trying to support what I consider the best men, regardless of party.

WANTS TWO BEST CANDIDATES

"I would like to see the best Republican nominated on the Republican ticket and the best Democrat nominated on the Democratic ticket, in which case we would be sure to have a good President, no matter which party was successful."

"Do you consider Senator Johnson a good man?" was asked.

"I consider him a very good man and the strongest man that the Republicans could nominate," said Mr. Hearst, "as he has the support of many independents and of many Democrats."

"Will you support Senator Johnson if he is nominated in Chicago?"

"I have no political plans beyond the day," was the reply.

"You are not yet supporting a candidate for the Democratic nomination, Mr. Hearst?"

"No, but I intend to as soon as the Republican convention is over," came the answer.

"Which of the two old parties do you think is the more shot to pieces with political agnosticism?"

"I would not call it agnosticism," said Mr. Hearst. "I would call it political apostasy. I think where the Democrats are weak is where they have departed from the fundamentals of democracy, and the same thing applies to the Republican party. One of the reasons why I am for Johnson is because he seems to me to be what you might call a Lincoln Republican. His principles are the popular principles on which the Republican party was founded."

SAYS WILSON WRECKED PARTY.

"Do you think the Democratic party has a man who would correspond with Johnson in the Republican party?"

"The Democratic party has a number of good men. I like Champ Clark very much. He seems to me a fine old-fashioned Democrat of the Jacksonian school. I think he was largely responsible as leader of the Democratic minority, and then of the Democratic majority in the House, in bringing the Democratic party back into popular favor and in making possible the election of a Democrat when Wilson was nominated and elected.

"I think Wilson has almost destroyed the Democratic party," Mr. Hearst continued, "and it needs a genuine old-fashioned Democrat to bring it back into popular favor.

"You remember that Bryan said a very good thing about Wilson. He said that at the end of Wilson's term there would not be any Democratic party; there might be a Wilson party, but there would not be any Democratic party.

"That seems to be the situation today. There is a Wilson party—not a very formidable one—but it is about all that is left of the Democratic party.

THIRD PARTY POSSIBLE.

"Now, as a more direct answer to your question, I would say I think the Republican party at present has far the better of the situation politically—strategetically—but it is easily possible for the Republican party to make a mistake that will entirely destroy its advantage."

"Do you see any danger of a third party movement—a split in the Republican party—a bolt?" I asked.

"I do not know enough about what you might call the 'inside politics' of the Republican party to say whether a bolt is possible or not.

"I understand that Senator Johnson is determined to remain a Republican no matter what happens at the convention. Senator Johnson can deliver himself, but he cannot deliver his followers, any more than Roosevelt could.

"Roosevelt left the Progressive party four years ago and declared for Hughes, but Hughes was not elected.

"The creation of a third party, as I say, depends largely on the action of the old parties. I am positive that if the old parties both nominate reactionaries there will be a very formidable third party movement.

IS FIRM AGAINST LEAGUE.

"I think the people of progressive thought in the community have come to think more of their principles than they do of their so-called parties."

"What do you think of Senator Lodge's stand as regards the League of Nations—and his associates in the Senate?"

"Well, personally, I am opposed to the League."

"Any kind of a league?"

"Any kind of a league that has been proposed," replied Mr. Hearst, "and I believe firmly in following the policies of Washington and the elder statesmen——"

"Regarding entanglements?"

"And keeping free from European entanglements and alliances," Mr. Hearst continued. "And I consider this league nothing less than a European alliance.

"We have prospered wonderfully by adhering to that policy, and it seems to me that whenever we depart from it we pay a rather serious penalty in burdens incurred. It may be necessary sometimes to depart from it temporarily, but that is a question which should be decided when the occasion arises, and to which we should not be irrevocably committed beforehand."

HIS PROHIBITION VIEWS

"Now on the prohibition amendment, Mr. Hearst—the Volstead act, for example—assuming the saloons are gone—what do you think about light wines and beer?" was the next question. "Do you want to say anything on that?"

"I will answer any question you ask," was the answer. "My opinions are yours or anybody's else.

"I have always been in favor of temperance and I have fought whiskey and advocated temperance for a great many years, and I really think that the editorials and cartoons and special articles in my papers and magazines have done a good deal to arouse the temperance sentiment in the country. Of course they have not done all, but they have done their share.

"But it seems to me that in the present stage of development at least the absolute prevention of the manufacture and sale of whiskies and hard drinks—what you might call the more intoxicating drinks—and the permission of the use of light wines and beer was the best way to secure temperance.

"This is so for the reason that as far as I have seen prohibition in operation has failed to prohibit.

"It has transformed the traffic in drink from a more or less regulation traffic to a secret and illicit traffic, and has eliminated the sale of light and comparatively harmless drinks, and has confined this illicit traffic to the most virulent, poisonous form of alcoholic drink.

WOULD TRY OUT PROHIBITION.

"But the situation arose which did not allow any opportunity for the development of my theory. There was a contest between the wide-open advocate, including the advocate of the saloon, and the shut-tight advocate or prohibitionist.

"And as between a wide-open saloon—as between the saloon and prohibition, I was for prohibition."

"And you are now?" Mr. Hearst was asked.

"Well, I think we have got it," he replied, "and no matter what we would be now, it is what we are."

"But as to the possibility of a change now, what do you think?"

"I do not think any particular change is possible at present—I do not know that it is desirable until we have given prohibition a fair trial. A great many people say that prohibition was rather sneaked over on them, but as a matter of fact it really was not.

"One county after another has been going dry over the United States for years, and as a result the various Congressmen and Senators found that their districts, their people, had in most cases voted dry. Men that drank, voted dry.

IS GLAD TO SEE SALOON GO.

"But anyhow, the people these Senators and Congressmen looked to for support, were supporting this dry movement—for temperance and in many cases for prohibition, honestly believing it was the best way to secure temperance.

"The result was—Congress and the Senators always try to represent their clientele, and voted in accordance with what they believed was the sentiment of their clientele.

"And we are not going to have anything different until that sentiment changes, and there is only one thing that will change it, and that is the obvious failure of prohibition from a temperance point of view.

"I do not know whether we will have that change or not. I know that in some countries they have had it—in Scandinavia, for instance, they have gone from absolute prohibition, which proved to be a failure, to the regulation of a light wine and beer traffic.

"But out of all this has come one good thing, for which everybody ought to thank God, and that is the abolition of the saloon, which I think was the most vicious element in our national life."

CORPORATION "HARDSHIPS."

"You are charged, Mr. Hearst—I have heard it at some of the clubs—with making hardships for the subways, elevated and street railways of New York much more difficult than they would have been, by keeping the fare down to 5 cents."

"Whose hardships?" asked Mr. Hearst.

"The subway people?"

"What subway people?"

"They are having hard sledding."

"Do you mean the owners of those properties?"

"Yes, they are having a hard time making ends meet. I notice they have signs up: Your New York American, once 1 cent, now 2 cents. Evening Journal now 3 cents, Hearst's Magazine now 35 cents, posted in the subways as an argument for increasing street railway fares. You have seen it?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Hearst.

"They quote from the Evening Journal and charge that you are the man who has kept fares down here to 5 cents.

"Well, in the first place," said Mr. Hearst, "I am not the man that keeps their fares down. I have nothing to do with that except to support the Mayor and the comptroller and the city government in their efforts to make the Interborough people, the Traction people, adhere to the contract which they made with the city.

LETS PEOPLE JUDGE CHARGE.

"When the Interborough people compare anything I may do or any individual may do, who has not a contract, they are making a foolish statement, and one which apparently counts upon public stupidity; and I do not think there is any such thing as public stupidity.

"I have never answered that question because I think the public have sense enough to see it without my answering."

"You have never answered the statements of the so-called Subway Sun?"

"Never, and wherever I have a contract I live up to it, and the transportation people, the traction people, made their contract with the city of New York and they should live up to it."

"And they are trying to violate it?"

"They are trying to violate it. Now the question whether they can live up to it properly or not is incidental, but nevertheless it has been shown and the evidence has been developed, that they can live up to it and pay profits—pay dividends.

"And they would be able to live up to it still more profitably if it had not been for a lot of watered stock deals and false dividends, unjustifiable dividends, and dishonest, or if not dishonest, at least improper transactions of that kind, by which they had to a certain extent looted and overburdened their properties.

"Their mismanagement is their concern and the penalty should fall on them. There is no reason why the public should have to pay for their mismanagement, and by paying for it to encourage them to further mismanagement, with the assurances that the public would always be the goat and would always stand the burden.

"That seems plainly obvious and that seems to be the way the city administration looks at it and the only way any honest city administration could look at it; and I am supporting the city administration in their attitude."

THE RELIGION TAUGHT BY OVERALLS UNIONS

By Rev. Roland D. Sawyer

THE IGNOBILITY OF DISPLAY.

"Manners are more important than laws—they are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, barbarize or refine us, by their steady, insensible operation."—Edmund Burke.

PEOPLE of today scoff at the native black or red man who loved his gaudy feathers and bright colors. We wonder at the ancestors who wore their uncomfortable wigs, powdered their hair and did many ridiculous things. But is the ignoble, foolish nature of our own love for display any better? How foolish appears the bedecked and medalled war general, as stiff, prim, he stands in brass buttons and shoulder straps, beside Socrates, Jesus, Francis, Jefferson, Lincoln. The greatest dignity in the world is the dignity of simplicity. We forget the awkwardness of the personal build of Lincoln in the grandeur of his simplicity; his tall, gaunt figure moves across the pages of our history in the true grace of greatness because he dressed and moved so simply; had he resorted to brass buttons and display he would be the butt of ridicule.

Ape-Stage of Life

We often say of people who are trying to appear like those in a social rank a little better off economically, "they are trying to ape their fellows." The term is just right—they have gone back from the human to the ape stage of evolution and are imitating those who display the greatest. Fondness of display is always a reverting to the ape stage of life. It is a childlike desire in man which moves him to seek display; that moves him to try to dress gorgeously.

If any people in the world should avoid display it is the American citizen, proud of his nation and history; for the deathless influence of our great is for simplicity of dress and habits; Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, Lincoln, Greeley, not one of our great was a lover of display.

Time Ripe for Simplicity

Simple personal bearing, manners and dress will abundantly pay in an added happiness, in the true grandeur of the life, in high thinking; but should these fail to attract one from the pathway of display, perhaps a reflection upon the folly, stupidity, ignobility of the love of display may cause one to turn from it and hail the wearers of denim garbs. We need to give heed to the gospel of quietness, dignity, peace; to escape the bedlam of noise, bustle, display. Display is but an exaggeration of the petty and mean side of human life. We make fools of ourselves, even worse, debase our better natures, when we spend our dollars for the display of dress, auto-cars, where we dine or the state with which we entertain.

There are splendid possibilities in this "overalls" movement, and the idea of simplicity should be pushed not only in the matter of clothes but into all departments of life. The time is ripe for a movement to simplicity in all our habits; and the after-war conditions make especially valuable the work of every pioneer who leads the way.

To the Editor

Auto Speed Law

Editor Boston American:

The law says that an auto must not be driven faster than twenty-five miles an hour. Still, we are allowed to own and drive on the public streets and highways autos that can do and are driven fifty or sixty miles an hour, and even more, or faster. Is the driver or the law to blame? Isn't it time that this law was reconsidered?

Why Do People Take Drugs?

Whether or not, as some claim, the advent of prohibition has led to the increased use of drugs, the fact remains that the drug traffic seems to be steadily on the increase. The use of habit-forming drugs in this country has indeed grown to an alarming extent. In New York city alone there are said to be several hundred thousand drug addicts.

The editors of Hearst's Magazine, believing that the drug habit constitutes a serious menace to the country and that the only way to cope with the evil is to warn against its terrible consequences, begins in the May issue of Hearst's the "Confessions of a Drug Victim."

MINE FALLS AND WHAT CAUSES THEM

By Garrett P. Serviss

"A recent article in a Chicago paper quoted an old miner as saying that most falls of material took place from 12, midnight, to 2 a. m. I have tunnelled about Chicago for many years and have noticed this same phenomenon. Would there be anything in a theory that the force of gravity, as exerted by earth and sun, is cumulative at this period, while they offset each other during other hours of the day? Theoretically, would not a given mass indicate a greater strain on a spring balance at midnight than at noon?—RAB."

THE mean disturbing force of the sun upon a body at the surface of the earth, when the sun is situated either overhead or underfoot (say noon and midnight), is about 1-19,600,000th of the earth's gravity. That is to say, the sun's attraction diminishes the weight of the body by the fraction just mentioned. But the diminution is very slightly less at midnight than at noon.

So it is true that theoretically a given mass would be heavier at midnight than at noon. But the difference is immeasurably small. Even the mean diminution of weight produced by the overhead or underfoot sun is too slight for detection by direct experiment; it can only be calculated from the known laws of gravitational action. Then, too, while the mass would weigh slightly more at midnight than at noon, it would weigh still more at sunrise or sunset, when the solar attraction tends to increase the weight of bodies on the meridian.

Moon Is Greater Factor

In these curious phenomena the moon, because of its relative nearness, plays a much greater part than the sun, for, on the average, when the moon is either overhead or underfoot, its attraction diminishes the weight of bodies about 2¼ times as much as the sun.

If, then, the fall of delicately-poised masses in mines is promoted or induced by gravitational disturbance originating outside the earth, the moon rather than the sun should be regarded as the principal source of the disturbance. As you have shown so intelligent an interest in the matter, I suggest that hereafter you note the position of the moon at the time of the falls, and particularly whether the falls occur more frequently about the time of full or new moon, because at such times the disturbing forces of the sun and the moon are combined, since they act along a line running through the earth's centre.

Differential Action

At first sight you might suppose that the moon and sun would tend to neutralize one another's action when they were in line on opposite sides of the earth, but this is not so, for the reason that the disturbance is produced by differential action, i. e., the difference of pull upon a body situated on the earth's surface and the pull upon the centre of the earth, which must be either 4,000 miles farther away or 4,000 miles nearer. The result of this difference is simultaneously to diminish the weight both on that side of the globe which faces the attracting body and on the opposite side.

I would also advise you to take notice of the weather, and particularly the state of the barometer, in connection with falls in mines. Most persons have not the slightest conception of the enormous changes of pressure to which the crust of the earth is locally subjected in correspondence with simultaneous changes of the barometric pressure or of the density of the atmosphere resting upon it. George Darwin has shown that the soil supports a weight greater by no less than 1,260 pounds on every square yard when the barometer is very high than when it is very low.
